FLYER TELLS HOW HE SAVED SELF BY JUMP INTO RIVER

Harry Campbell Makes First Parachute Leap, at Night, After Motor Falls Out of Mail Plane.

SWIMS 15 MINUTES WITH CLOTHES ON

Finally Reaches Island and Is Rescued by Fishermen—Letters Sent On in Another Craft.

Harry Campbell, pilot on the night transcontinental mail route, had an interesting quarter of an hour Sunday night. The motor fell out of his airplane, Campbell made his first parachute jump, then landed in the water at the junction of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers and was forced to swim fully clothed for 15 minutes before reaching an island from which he was rescued by fishermen.

"I took off from Lambert-St. Louis field at 9:05 o'clock for Columbus, O., with the New York mail," Campbell related. "Fifteen minutes later, while flying at 1000 feet, there was a terrific jerk, and the ship nosed upward, then flipped downward and to the left. An instant later it whipped to the right, and I realized that I was out of control without knowing what had happened.

"The air had been rough coming in from Kansas City and leaving Lambert field. I had fastened my safety belt as tight as I could comfortably have it. I was some difficulty getting the belt unbuckled, but once I was free I lost no time in getting overboard. It was my first jump, and I guess I failed to follow the prescribed procedure, but my method was effective. With one hand on the rip cord, I dived out of the cockpit, then pulled the ring.

"Tries to Escape Water. The chute opened immediately. I certainly meant that I was floating gently down. Then, as I floated gently down, I saw that I was being carried over the river. I tried to guide the chute in an effort to make a dry landing, but a south wind was too much for me, and out over the water I went.

"When about 20 feet above the surface I unbuckled the chute, and attempted to dive. I failed to get the dive started soon enough, and struck the water flat on my stomach. The impact knocked some wind out of me, but the water was warm, and muddy as was later shown by the condition of my clothing. I wiped off my leather flying jacket, and tried to get my shoes off, but couldn't make it. The strap on my helmet was about to strangle me and I tried to unbuckle it, but as all thumbs, and failed at that also.

"So I shoved my goggles off my eyes and struck out for the island I had seen from the air. I made it after a struggle, but I could not have gone much farther, as I could hardly move my legs when I felt bottom.

"Campbell was resting when several fishermen arrived in a boat and told him they had seen his plane fall on the island. After a search the ship was found. The craft landed on its wheels, suffering considerable damage to mail cargo and Campbell's suitcase were undamaged.

The Mail Goes On. Campbell helped get the mail out of the plane and returned it to Lambert field, where it was taken into another plane and flown East by a relief pilot. Search of the land yesterday resulted in the finding of the motor. Examination disclosed that the blade of the propeller apparently had snapped off in flight, the uneven revolutions of the remaining blade tearing the engine from the ship.

Campbell studied law at Washington University and, following his graduation several years ago, was admitted to the bar, but found the legal profession too tedious. He was appointed a cadet at Kelly field, Texas, and on completing a flying course, entered commercial aviation in 1929. He now resides at Kansas City.

WALKER AT WORK ON REPLY NEW YORK, July 5.—Mayor James J. Walker began writing today his answer to charges of unfitness filed against him by Investigator Samuel Seabury. He hopes to send it to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt next week.

"I think it will take the Governor about two weeks to study my answer," he said. "I think I will know just what is to happen to me, if anything, in about three weeks. I'd like to know as soon as possible, because I can scarcely go ahead with any definite, detailed policy of administration until Governor acts."

UNOFFICIAL MOVE FOR U. S.-SOVIET NEGOTIATIONS

American Industrialist in Moscow Suggests Action as Preliminary to Diplomatic Relations.

(Copyright, 1932, by Associated Press.) MOSCOW, July 5.—Tentative and unofficial moves are being made to reopen the question of formal diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia.

Acting alone and in a private capacity, Col. Frederick Pope, New York industrialist, has presented to officials here a suggestion that the American Government send an unofficial commissioner to the Soviet Union as a preliminary to possible negotiations for the establishment of normal relations between the two countries.

The Associated Press has reason to believe that his proposal was received with favor.

Col. Pope laid the matter last night before a special meeting of men high in the councils of the Soviet Government. Among them were V. I. Mezhlauk, vice chairman of the State Planning Commission; V. V. Ostashev, head of the Central Administration of the National Economic Control; E. V. Rubin, head of the American Department of the Commissariat for Foreign Affairs; and Karl Radek, the country's foremost international political commentator.

It was learned that the American discussed with them "satisfactory" conversations he held on the subject in certain quarters in Washington just before sailing for Russia late in May. The details of these conversations were undisclosed. Col. Pope is expected to return to the United States this month and undoubtedly he will renew his discussions in Washington.

Others in the Chicago offices will be: Former Gov. Henry Allen of Kansas, national publicity director; Mrs. Eliza Yost, chairman of women's activities; and Robert Lucas, vice-chairman of the National Committee.

Sanders indicated the active speaking tour for the major campaigners will not begin until early September.

GOES TO JAIL AT 72 RATHER THAN GIVE UP BOYHOOD HOME

Illinois, Who Lost Land by Foreclosure, Drove Off New Owners With Gun.

A. B. Rockwell went to jail today rather than consent to give up a portion of the farm in Madison County, Illinois, on which he was born 72 years ago. It had been acquired through foreclosure by two Edwardsville lawyers, but when they and a constable went there a month ago to take possession Rockwell drove them away with a shotgun.

He was taken before Circuit Judge Brown today for contempt of court. The judge offered to drop the matter if Rockwell would give up his resistance. "No, sir," the defendant said. "I was born and raised on that farm and my father farmed those 40 acres before I was born. Nobody can take it away from me." The judge sentenced him to an indefinite term in jail.

Rockwell borrowed $2400 on the property from a bank at Alhambra 13 years ago. His notes, secured by a mortgage, later were acquired by W. L. Burroughs and Jesse L. Simpson. They foreclosed, alleging that Rockwell had never paid any interest or any part of the principal.

The new postal rates requiring three-cent stamps on letters will become effective at midnight tonight. Letters bearing the last collection tonight will be marked for insufficient postage.

The new three-cent stamp is printed in purple and bears a likeness of the Stuart portrait of George Washington. Three other three-cent issues will come into use, the Lincoln stamp of the regular issue, the three-cent stamp of the Washington bicentennial series and the Olympic games stamp. Persons who have two-cent stamps enveloping must use them by affixing one-cent stamps.

It is not intended at present to issue eight-cent air mail stamps to meet the new air mail rates. A combination of five-cent air mail stamp and any three-cent stamp may be used for all mail letters.

BYSTANDER KILLED DURING ROBBERY OF INDIANA BANK

Seven Men Get $4000 in Holdup of San Pierre Depository.

SAN PIERRE, Ind., July 5.—Seven men shot and killed a bystander while robbing the State Bank here of $4000 shortly after it opened for business today.

Albert Benham, a deaf mute, who was standing outside the bank, was shot four times and fatally wounded when he failed to obey the order of one of the robbers to move on. They fired several shots both inside and outside the bank.

The robbers, armed with shotguns, revolvers and a machine gun, drove up to the bank and two remained outside as guards. The men who entered the bank compelled Thomas Daily, the cashier, to hand over the cash which he was carrying from the vault to the counter. They then looted the bank vault.

ACCUSED WOMAN GIVES VERSION OF 'COCKTAIL MURDER'

Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, on Trial in London, Says Stephen Was Slain Accidentally.

TELLS OF SCUFFLE FOR THE REVOLVER

Daughter of Broker Contends Man She Supported Tried to Prevent Her From Ending Her Life.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, July 5.—Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, estranged wife of an American singer and daughter of a wealthy London stock broker, took the stand today in her trial for murder in the killing of William Scott Stephen, son of a prominent financier. Stephen was shot to death in Mrs. Barney's apartment in Mayfair early in the morning of May 31 after a cocktail party. The defense is that the fatal shot was fired as Stephen tried to disarm Mrs. Barney who had threatened to kill herself.

Tells of Killing. Questioned by her attorney, Sir Patrick Hastings, she recounted all details—including some sordid ones—of her love for Stephen.

She had been anxious, she said, to keep knowledge of her mode of life from her parents, Sir John and Lady Mullens. They were present in the courtroom as she testified.

The defendant retained her composure on the stand until her attorney asked her about the events of the night of May 31, when she gave a smart cocktail party in her flat, in which Stephen was found shot to death.

Tears choked her as she testified that Stephen was shot accidentally as they were struggling for a revolver and that before he died he kept saying: "I wish the doctor would come. I want to tell him it was an accident and not your fault."

With the speed which characterizes British justice, this case—one of the most sensational England has known for years—was virtually concluded this afternoon after less than two days in court.

The remainder of the defense address and the judge's summing up. Led by her attorney, Mrs. Barney told of abuses at the hands of her American husband, John Barney, a theatrical singer, shortly after their marriage. She said she had been in an emment family, who had been a designer of women's gowns, but was without work.

In addition to supporting him, the defendant said, she gave him money for gambling, and he gambled with another woman, to whom she objected.

After the May 31 cocktail party, Mrs. Barney testified, Stephen and another man accompanied her to supper, for which she paid. Then she and Stephen returned to her apartment. A quarrel developed, and he said he was going to leave. She told him that if he did she would kill herself.

He rushed to an arm chair, where she kept a pistol, the defendant told the court, and seized it, saying: "Well, anyway, you won't do it with this." In the subsequent struggle, she said, the pistol was discharged and Stephen was shot.

After she had finished her story, the defense counsel turned to the judge and said quietly: "That is my story."

The prosecution presented testimony that Stephen could not have shot himself and that it was impossible for a pistol discharged in a struggle to produce such a wound as that which caused death.

The defense, denying a story that Mrs. Barney had fired on Stephen once before the night of the murder, got the witness to tell of that incident.

Stephen came home one night and asked for money, she said. She gave him some and he left, but came back in a few minutes and said he wanted more. She refused to give it to him but he stayed outside of the house calling to her.

"I was so unhappy about everything that had happened," she said, "that I thought I would make him think I was going to commit suicide. So I went and got a revolver and fired it at random in the air."

Because of the prominence of the figure the trial has attracted hundreds of persons but today only a few spectators were admitted to

HOOVER INVITES LEADERS TO CONFER ON RELIEF BILL, HOPING TO AVERT VETO

PEACE IN PARTY IS ROOSEVELT'S FIRST OBJECTIVE

Will Be in New York Sunday; Friends Hope for Meeting With Smith; Plans to See Garner.

GOING ON SEA TRIP WITH SONS FOR WEEK

Study of Walker Reply to Charges to Be Made Then if Ready—Walsh Joins Curley for Ticket.

By the Associated Press. ALBANY, N. Y., July 5.—Home from his first trip as the Democratic presidential candidate, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today took up the task of making peace in the party as his first step in the campaign, and arranged for a short sea outing.

He will meet James A. Farley, national committee chairman, in either Hyde Park or New York City this week-end to discuss campaigning and financing of the campaign. He will go to his Hyde Park home on Friday night and into New York on Sunday. There has been some belief that during the Sunday stay in New York City a conversation between himself and former Gov. Smith would be arranged. So far, Roosevelt's former political ally has not commented on the Roosevelt candidacy.

Carrying out a four-year old idea, Gov. Roosevelt and his four sons, next week will go on a short cruise in a 40-foot yawl up the New England coast. He said today that he and the boys, James, Elliott, Franklin Jr. and John, would put out next Monday from some point on Long Island with Portsmouth, N. H., as their destination. There will be one other person on board, a press representative, who will meet newspaper men when the boat ties up each night.

The nominee explained that in the four years he had been Governor, he had been unable to have a vacation with his sons. The boat trip was arranged months before the Democratic convention and was to be carried out in event of his victory or defeat.

Plan to See Garner Soon. On returning to the executive office Mr. Roosevelt turned to state affairs, receiving Mark Graves, his director of the budget. Women employees of the office presented him with a large basket of yellow roses.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had talked with Speaker Garner, his running mate, last night, and that the Speaker's plans for campaigning and the official notification ceremony were being held up pending the adjournment of Congress. It was indicated that Mr. Roosevelt and Garner would have a personal conference in Albany or New York City in the near future.

The Governor said he was pleased with the comments of Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican of California, who yesterday approved of the Roosevelt acceptance speech in Chicago.

Roosevelt said he would study the reply of Mayor Walker to charges brought by Samuel Seabury during the next week's boat trip if the reply reaches him before Monday morning. Walker indicated yesterday his answer would be in the Governor's hands this week-end.

No further plans for campaigning have been made. Mr. Roosevelt told newspaper men in Chicago, last Saturday, he said a series of short trips would be made from Albany during the early part of the summer.

Confident of Peace. The Governor is expected to give much attention to the Smith group. He came home expressing confidence that there would be no faction in the party during the campaign.

On the trip from Chicago yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt said: "Usually, wounds left by a convention fight heal before very long." As the leader of the Smith forces in the bitter 1924 party convention, and one of the principal peace-makers in the party in the years since, he spoke from first-hand knowledge.

The Governor came home to find

Deputy Fills Vacancy Caused by Death—Six Feet Tall, He Has Been in Service 30 Years.

Deputy Fire Chief Frank A. Devoto today was appointed head of the Fire Department to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Chief Charles Alt.

The new chief has been a fireman nearly 30 years, joining the Fire Department headquarters in 1903. He is 58 years old, married and lives at 3307 Halliday avenue. Devoto was promoted to Lieutenant five years after he became a fireman, and four years later was advanced to Captain. July 15, 1918, he was appointed a District Chief, with headquarters at Leonard and Easton avenues. He has been Deputy Chief since Jan. 22, 1930, occupying an office at the Fire Department headquarters in City Hall, and taking charge of the department when Chief Alt was on vacation, and during Alt's last illness.

The new chief is an impressive figure, being six feet in height and weighing more than 200 pounds. The appointment was announced by Director of Public Safety Steininger following a conference with Mayor Miller this morning. The appointment carries a salary increase from $4000 to $5000 a year.

Chief Devoto's first official act was the appointment of District Chief Frank A. Egenriether as Deputy Chief. Egenriether, who lives at 5524 A. Tennessee avenue, and is a brother of Assistant Chief of Detectives Fred Egenriether, has been a fireman since 1915, and a district chief since last August.

Chief Alt died last Thursday at his home, 3716 Hartford street, of erysipelas, after three weeks' illness. He was 67 years old, a member of the Fire Department for 37 years, and Chief since 1925.

CALLS MEMBERS OF BOTH PARTIES TO WHITE HOUSE

President Objects to Provision for Distributing Funds to States on Basis of Population, Not of Need.

OPPOSES PUBLIC WORKS SECTION, TOO

Conferees Agree on Wagner-Garner Measure—Watson Says Congress Won't Adjourn Till It Is Made Acceptable to Executive.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 5.—In an effort to remove parts of the $2,100,000,000 Wagner-Garner relief bill which he considers objectionable, President Hoover today called Senate and House leaders of both parties to meet with him at the White House tonight at 6 p. m.

Although White House aides declined to tell who had been called to the executive mansion, it was said that about a dozen leading Republicans and Democrats would be present.

It was learned from a high source that the President intends to veto the Wagner-Garner bill unless changes are made in it. He objects strenuously to the provision distributing certain funds to the states on the basis of population rather than need, and is also opposed to the $22,000,000 public works clause.

Those he has called into conference include Speaker Garner. Conferees Approve Bill. The relief bill was finally approved by the conferees today. The report on the bill was submitted to the House today and will be taken up tomorrow, with leaders confident of sending it to the Senate by nightfall.

A veto of the relief measure had been authoritatively predicted after the conferees included in the compromise bill provision for a $22,000,000 public works program which the President has fought.

His advisers at the capital passed on the word, however, that the President also was unopposed to that section of the bill under which $200,000,000 would be allocated to the states on the basis of population for emergency relief.

In an effort to compromise with the President, the conferees provided that an additional $100,000,000 should be distributed by the President on the basis of need. Mr. Hoover, however, had asked that the entire fund be made available on that basis.

The conferees approved the final draft of the compromise agreement in the same form in which it was tentatively agreed to last Saturday, carrying $300,000,000 for direct relief loans to states; $22,000,000 for public construction; and $150,000,000 for loans through the Reconstruction Corporation, both public and private.

All Sign But One. All the conferees signed the bill except Representative Treadway (Rep.), Massachusetts, a strong administration supporter. His refusal to sign added strength to the report that President Hoover would veto the measure.

A copy of the compromise measure was sent by the conferees to the White House today for the President's study.

The text of the compromise bill was withheld until presented in the House.

Representative Snell of New York, Republican leader in the House and chairman at his party's recent national convention, after a week-end at President Hoover's Virginia Mountain camp, told newspaper men:

"We are going to have relief legislation no matter how long we stay here. If the President should veto the relief bill, and Congress adjourn without any relief legislation, the President will call us back within 24 hours. He will not let us leave here without enacting an acceptable relief bill."

MOVE TO HURRY ACTION ON REPEAL MADE IN SENATE

Barbour, New Jersey Tries to Force Report on His Measure to This End, but Sheppard Blocks It.

'HOME LOAN, NOT HOME BREW BILL'

Watson Comments on Beer Rider—Gore Wants Bills Embodying Both Platform Declarations.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 5.—Two moves for action on constitutional amendments calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment were made in the Senate today as debate on the controversial issue re-heated from the recent political conventions.

An effort by Senator Barbour (Rep., N. J.), to get action on a motion to discharge the Judiciary Committee from further consideration of his repeal resolution was blocked by an objection from Senator Sheppard (Dem., Tex.), co-author of the eighteenth amendment.

Gore (Dem., Okla.), offered a resolution to direct the Judiciary Committee to report two constitutional amendments, one based on the Democratic and the other the Republican platform plank.

In the resolution the observation was made that "it will soon become the duty of Congress to consider the question of submitting one or the other or both of such proposed amendments to the people of the several states for ratification or rejection."

Ashurst (Rep., Ariz.), said that although his immediate consideration was not requested, prompt opposition appeared from Ashurst (Dem., Ariz.), who argued it would be easy for any Senator to draw up an amendment carrying out the Democratic pledge, but wholly impossible for anyone to write one based on the Republican plank.

During the debate Bingham (Rep., Conn.), said that in view of the Democratic pledge he was counting upon a "solid" Democratic vote for a repeal resolution. This brought from Tydings (Dem., Md.), another leading anti-prohibitionist, the remark that Bingham's statement
"will get just about what he expects."

Off the floor, Watson, the Republican leader, predicted that the Bingham beer rider on the home loan bill would be defeated in the Senate.

"Home Loan Not Home Brew,"

"This is a home loan bill, not a home brew bill," said Watson.
Tydings asked if any Republican planned to draft a resolution carrying out the intent of the party platform on prohibition. When no one replied he asked if any Republican Senator believed it could be done.

When there still was no reply he said: "I assume not only that it is not going to be done, but that it can't be done."

Smoot (Rep., Utah), replied that the only legislation that would suit Tydings was something "to make a man drunk."

"I'm for prohibition not only by word or mouth but by practice," Smoot shouted.

"Then you are not in accord with your platform declaration," Tydings remarked.

"I wouldn't care what it was as far as I am concerned," Smoot replied. "That doesn't make a particle of difference to me."

The Republican House wet bloc has been called to meet tomorrow to consider plans for action on a 3.2 per cent beer bill introduced today by Representative Britten of Illinois.

Senator Bingham will try to get a vote on his bill legalizing 3.2 per cent beer. Bingham predicted that the Senate would approve it by a majority of three or four votes.

A Democratic Opportunity.
Representative Britten (Rep., Ill.), said in a statement: "If the Bingham beer amendment is passed by the Senate it will be immediately overwhelmingly accepted by the House."

"Speaker John Garner can in one hour make more Democratic votes for Roosevelt and Garner by following the beer plank in the national platform than he can in the next four months of the most intensive personal campaigning."

"He is now the Democratic leader on Capitol Hill. His Committee on Rules can make the beer bill of the House wet bloc the immediate order of business."

"He could be directly responsible for a $400,000,000 surplus in the Federal Treasury on July 1, 1933, and his action would be placing alike to business as well as to the taxpayer."

"An adjournment of Congress without a serious attempt on the part of Democratic leaders to make effective their plank for immediate modification of the Volstead law would make their promises in Chicago look ridiculous. A Democratic House is prepared to vote if its leaders will but say the word."

Senator Norris (Ind. Rep.), Nebraska, referring to the beer bill—
"it is not reasonable to expect that just when we are about to adjourn

we shall pass something that we have fought for years."

Britten Asks About Beer.
Asked in the House today whether it would be possible to consider immediately beer-for-revenue legislation, Speaker Garner replied: "No bill of that character has been reported to the House."

Britten, propounded the question, gaining recognition by saying he had a "parliamentary inquiry."
"Is it possible to take up the beer tax bill this afternoon that has been introduced by the Democratic platform?" he asked.

"No bill of that character has been reported to the House," Garner replied.

"There is the O'Connor-Hull bill," Britten persisted. "I understand it can be taken up under a special rule if the speaker says so."

"That is not a parliamentary inquiry," Garner replied as he rapped his gavel, "and the gentleman has been here long enough to know it."

ACCUSED WOMAN GIVES VERSION OF
'COCKTAIL MURDER'

The court room. Most of them were well known in society and the arts.
Mrs. Barney is the daughter of Sir John and Lady Mullins.

Doctor Tells of Scene.

Testimony concerning another woman in the case was introduced yesterday by a Dr. Durant whom Mrs. Barney called to her apartment after the shooting. He gave an account of what he saw.

Stephen was dead when he entered the apartment, the doctor said, and Mrs. Barney, hysterical, was kissing the body again and again, talking incoherently.

She told him she and Stephen had quarreled the evening before over the other woman, the witness said, but later they had become reconciled. The quarrel was resumed after a visit to a night club, however, he said she told him, and then Stephen threatened to leave the flat and go to the other woman.

She then threatened to kill herself, the doctor said she told him, but Stephen took the revolver which was lying on a chair and started away. Mrs. Barney followed him, he quoted her as saying, and they struggled. The revolver went off in the struggle.

Dr. Durant said Mrs. Barney was "in a crazy state of mind" and could not have invented an explanation that was not true.

At one point the defendant collapsed. White and trembling, she left the dock with a waitress supporting each arm. She remained controlled during most of the doctor's testimony, however, but wept at intervals. She was dressed in black, relieved only by little strips of white on her hat.

BOMB IN $10,000,000 CAPITOL
West Virginia Authorities Say It Was Made by Expert.

By the Associated Press.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5.—
State police said last night a time bomb apparatus found in the basement of the new $10,000,000 capitol building was made by an expert.

Capt. Harry A. Cooper explained the device as a "perfect machine" of the type designed to ignite exploding material. It was made to throw a spark when a clock spring expanded. Investigators are scrutinizing the paper in which the bomb was wrapped and checking the subscription list of a Philadelphia foreign language publication.

Troopers continue to patrol the building. The bomb was found Sunday by an electrician.

HOUSE MEMBERS JOIN IN OVATION TO NOMINEE GARNER

Speaker Modestly Raps for Order, Snell, G. O. P.
Convention Chairman
Congratulates Him.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 5.—Speaker
John N. Garner, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, was greeted with a tremendous burst of applause today as he walked into the House chamber to take the chair for the first time since his nomination.

By previous arrangement, an unusually large number of members were present, both Democrats and Republicans. The Speaker delayed his entrance, however, until just a few minutes before the noon meeting hour.

Garner took the chair, laid his glasses on the desk and rapped for order in vain. At first he stared fixedly at a small card, as if embarrassed, but finally he smiled and smiled at the ovation continued for several minutes, punctuated by rebel yells and shouts.

Finally order was restored for the opening prayer. Immediately afterward Representative Snell, the Republican leader, went forward to the desk and personally congratulated Garner.

This was the signal for another outburst of applause from the Democrats, who arose to their feet with cheers. Snell was permanent chairman of the Republican National Convention.

Garner to Take a Rest.

Garner is going to take a rest in Texas before he enters the campaign. He does not plan extensive tours but Democrats throughout the country are urging him to make speeches in a number of big cities.

After Congress adjourns Garner will go to Albany to confer with Gov. Franklin Roosevelt on plans for the campaign, and then return to Washington to wind up details at the Speaker's office.

Somewhat wearied by the seven months of this session of Congress, Garner is anxious to go home to Uvalde, where he is always refreshed by the invigorating climate. Fishing trips in a muchbettered river, too, give him relaxation.

Garner does not want to make many speeches. He feels that, through the radio, candidates can reach more people on real issues.

On the other hand, he contends that, even on an extensive tour, without the aid of the radio, a candidate can hardly get his word to more than 300,000 persons.

Simple Affair to Garner.

As for the official notification of his nomination, Garner feels that his message to the convention was sufficient. He believes "the less flubdub the better."

At his press conference Garner said there was not going to be "any expense" attached to his formal notification of the nomination.
"I thought I was through with it when I sent a telegram to Representative Sam Rayburn, chairman of the Texas delegation, thanking them for the nomination," Garner said, with a smile.

The Speaker said Senator Walsh of Montana, the permanent chairman of the convention, "is over in the Senate and it does not cost anything for bus fare or any other kind of transportation to come over from the Senate to the House."

Still in Congressional Race.
Meanwhile he will continue as a candidate for the next Congress from the Fourteenth Texas District which he has served for 30 years.
The primaries are on the last Saturday of this month. Garner's idea is to keep the 6000 Republican voters in his district from electing a successor to him.

Not until Congress has adjourned will he make any public statement on politics. He holds that he is too busy at his present job as Speaker of the House.

BONUS SEEKERS PARADE AGAIN TO NATIONAL CAPITOL

More Than 4000, Including
Women and Children, Demand Immediate Payments by Government.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 5.—A ragged army of veterans marched down Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol today to renew their demands before Congress for immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

This was the second time the former service men had paraded formally to the Capitol. Informal marches, however, have been conducted on several occasions.

There were only 4731 in the line of march, composed of 4701 men, 13 women and 17 children.

A squad of motor cycle police headed the parade. Other police on motor cycles in squad cars and on foot, rode and marched with the veterans. Spectators along the line were few.

Some of the children in the parade were too small to walk and were pushed in baby carriages or carried.

Pelham D. Glassford, Chief of Washington police, rode among the marchers on a motor cycle. Leaders of the various groups saluted him as he passed.

A bugle corps sounded off with great vigor as the march started up Capitol Hill. About half way up, however, the corps lost its wind.

As the parade reached the Senate office building the marchers broke ranks and scattered over the plaza and the Capitol steps.

Speaking from the Capitol steps, Harold B. Foulkrod of Philadelphia, a member of the bonus-seekers army, assailed Secretary Hurley, John Barton Payne, chairman of the Readjustment Board, Hoover and W. W.

MORE THAN 300 HERE INJURED BY FIREWORKS

215 Persons Apply for Treatment at City Hospital—45 Rejected Because of Ability to Pay.

TWO MEN, BOY SERIOUSLY HURT

Three Celebrators Arrested by Police—Negro Loses Eye and Lad's Hand May Be Amputated.

More than 300 persons were injured by fireworks yesterday in celebrating the Fourth of July in St. Louis and vicinity. These are the only persons who have been injured by fireworks today. These were Ben Kregewski, 22, and Ollie Vaughn, 38, a Negro.

The Kregewski boy, who lives at 1415 North Ninth street, held a large firecracker in his right hand when it exploded. The hand was badly burned and lacerated, and physicians said it might become necessary to amputate it. Zesch, who lives at 5202 Morganford road, was burned on the left hand and face when a large firecracker exploded in his hand. Vaughn's right eye was removed last night at City Hospital No. 2. It was injured when someone threw a large firecracker at him. He lives at 10 North Twenty-second street.

At the various public hospitals and dispensaries in St. Louis and the county 369 persons applied for treatment yesterday for fireworks injuries and others were treated at private hospitals and in doctors' offices. Of the 215 who applied at City Hospital 45 were rejected because of their apparent ability to pay for medical attention.

Three celebrators were arrested and the Fire Department was summoned to two fires attributed to the fireworks. One of those arrested was a 12-year-old boy who discharged a blank pistol. It exploded, blowing out two teeth and burning and lacerating his face and tongue.

Two men who said they were Walter Walsh and Joseph Belc, were charged with discharging fire arms within the city limits. Police said they were taking turns shooting a small caliber rifle.

One of the fires caused damage of $10 in a candy store at 5748 W. 11th street. The other, in a garage at the rear of 4157 West 11th street, caused damage estimated at $50.

Leo Jenkowski, 6 years old, 1855 W. Market street, picked up a firecracker which had failed to explode and blew on the fuse. It exploded, blowing out two teeth and burning and lacerating his face and tongue.

Woman's Dress Catches Fire. Miss Bertha Israel, 5447 Waterman avenue, reported to police she had been injured by a fire. It started from the porch of an apartment house in the 300 block of De Baliviere avenue. Her clothing caught fire and her right arm and shoulder were burned. She was taken to a doctor's office. No arrests were made as Miss Israel told police she would not prosecute the men who admitted they had been throwing firecrackers to the sidewalk.

Several children who applied for treatment at City Hospital were sent home after their injuries had been treated. One child, who had been dressed to obtain consent of his parents for injection of anti-tetanus serum. Use of the serum was advised as a precaution against tetanus.

Most of the injuries were burns suffered from the use of firecrackers and blank pistols. Several suffered eye injuries from particles of stone blown from torpedoes. A motorist whose car was badly lacerated by a torpedo thrown into his automobile, was among those who went to City Hospital.

Injuries in East St. Louis. May Akrolera, 8, 2307 North Fifteenth street, Washington Park, suffered burns of the inside of the mouth and throat yesterday when a small firecracker she was blowing on exploded. She was taken to a hospital and returned home.

Santos Perkins, a Negro, 2103 Missouri street, East St. Louis, was wounded in the left leg when a young man in an automobile drove by his home and fired a revolver. Ten other persons in East St. Louis suffered burns as a result of Fourth of July celebration.

BREADON FINED FOR SPEEDING. President of Cardinals Fails to Appear for Hearing.

Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, was fined $10 by default today on a charge of speeding. He failed to appear at a hearing before Police Judge William H. Miller. He was charged with going 45 miles an hour on Hampton avenue, June 27.

Open Verdict in Man's Death. An open verdict was returned by a coroner's jury today in the death of William J. Cooper, 34 years old, 2307 Waverly avenue, East St. Louis, whose body was found Saturday in the Mississippi River at the foot of Davis street. His sister, Mrs. Edna Williams, testified that she left home Wednesday with the announced intention of going swimming.

PLAN TO SELL P. S. CO. PROPERTIES TO CITY ON 30-YEAR CONTRACT

Without the annual payments to the present owners being approximately $3,000,000. In any year in which earnings brought the payment to the company below $2,900,000 the city's share would not be sufficient for present taxes and depreciation.

No definite price for the railway properties was mentioned, but with interest at 5 per cent, in 30 years $30,000,000 would amortize a debt of nearly $50,000,000. In this connection it will be recalled that the present owners who bought the old United Railways at receiver's sale paid $49,100,000 for it. The company's indebtedness including bonds in the hands of the public and bank loans is about $35,000,000.

Details of the company's proposal are not available, as the city's representatives are not willing to discuss it. Following the conference, however, some of the Aldermen said they believed there was a possibility of getting together with the company. This indicates the Aldermen believed the original proposal was made on a trading basis and is subject to modification.

The Aldermen are known to be opposed to political operation of the transportation system, but their views could not be learned on the feature of the company plan, which seemingly would make the city's transit system a franchise, as it by franchise, in the operation of the property from which they would be relieved of further liability for taxes and street improvements.

Does Not Fit Newton Plan. It is evident the company plan does not coincide with the recommendations of Aldermanic special counsel, Cleveland A. Newton, except as to the principle of the city's acquiring transit properties without insuring bonds or pledging its general credit.

Newton recommended the city should consider purchasing only such property as would be of use in a modern unified transit system, not all of the company's property, as contemplated by the scheme under discussion, and that part only at a price based on present and prospective earning power. He pointed out the objective of the Aldermen was to provide the people of St. Louis with the best possible mass transportation, and not the financial rescue of investors in securities of the present operating company.

Wrote Capital Written Down. As a means to the desired end he suggested that the company write down its capital debt to a basis of actual value to the city, adjusting equities within its own ranks, the municipally owned transit system, then to assume the obligation which would become a lien only upon the system and its revenues, and not upon tax revenues.

The urgent need of an improved transit system was put before the Aldermanic committee by the Chamber of Commerce, which showed how inadequate service was hampering business.

Banking representatives of the Public Service Co. at the recent conference were Walter W. Smith, president of the First National Bank; Tom K. Smith, president of the Boatmen's National Bank; James H. Grover, president of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., and Hugo W. Wadsworth and Arnold Stifel, investment bankers.

The company's $10,000,000 bank loan, for which $16,000,000 of its 4 per cent bonds are pledged as collateral, was negotiated through the First National Bank.

Walter W. Smith, Tom K. Smith and Wadsworth are directors of the company.

The city's joint committee is composed of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment—Mayor Miller, Comptroller Noffs and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen—and Aldermen Edward W. Wiehe, William J. Studt and Louis Fischer.

Found Shot Dead in Home. John Bashick, 68 years old, assistant sexton of St. John's Evangelical Church, Granite City, was found shot to death in the basement of his home, 2628 East Twenty-fourth street, Granite City, Sunday night. His wife found the body on returning home from a visit. A revolver was lying alongside the body. Bashick had been ill.

HOLDUP MEN TAKE $275 AND RING FROM DRUGGIST

Two Men Also Get Narcotics From Safe of Mark Kaufman at 1250 Biddle Street.

As Mark Kaufman, a druggist at 1250 Biddle street, was preparing to close his store last night, he was held up by two men who entered and ordered drinks. Kaufman, a clerk and a customer were forced to go to the rear of the store while the robbers took $275, a $75 ring and narcotics from a safe, and escaped.

The Marcus Pharmacy, 2400 Marcus avenue, had been robbed of $12 an hour and a half before by two robbers of the description of those who held up Kaufman. James Kaufman, a clerk, another employee and a customer were required to lie behind a prescription counter.

Harold W. Frank, clerk in the United Cigar Store, 622 Locust street, was shut up in a locker by two men wearing masks who took $26 from the register shortly after noon yesterday. It was the fifth robbery at the store in the last two years.

Emil Flenu, proprietor of a drug store at 1401½ South Broadway, was held up at 11 a. m. today by two men who took $150 from the cash register and fled.

As John J. Bradley, 2752 St. Vincent avenue, took his purse out of his pocket at Broadway and Market street last night, the purse was snatched from his hand by a young man who escaped. It contained $10.

Fred Beauchamp, a newsdealer of 4501 Maryland avenue, was despoiled of a bundle of papers at a drug store at Maryland and Taylor avenues early yesterday when an armed man robbed him of $11.

Mrs. Jessie Goorman, owner of the shop, valued the dresses at about $1000. They were not insured.

A Negro youth who gave his name as Joseph Binion has admitted, according to police, that he stole $790 from the barber shop of William Crowder, a Negro, 1423½ Biddle street, June 24. Crowder told police the money represented savings he had withdrawn from a bank.

Robberies occurring Sunday were: A holdup at the branch of the City Ice & Fuel Co., 2931 North Jefferson avenue, where $486 was stolen; one at a gasoline station at 400 North Skinner boulevard, $115 taken; drug store of Ernest H. Niemoeller, 3900 Greer avenue, $25; drug store of Floyd Lucas, 3951 Winnebago street, $64.

As Lawrence Reuss of Belleville was being abducted by his automobile by two robbers who held him up at Tenth street and Broadway early today, the automobile collided with an express truck at Tenth street and Tremblay avenue. The robber was driving and his accomplice leaped out and escaped. Nothing was taken from Reuss.

Fireworks exploded in the confectionery of August Ruth, 3611 Chippewa street, at 9 o'clock last night, smashing a display window and causing several hundred dollars damage to the stock of goods. Ruth, who was in the store, escaped injury. He said he could not account for the explosion.

FLYERS, MISSING SINCE MAY 17 IN AUSTRALIA, FOUND

Germans, Forced Down in Bush, Cared for by Natives Who Send for Help.

By the Associated Press. SYDNEY, Australia, July 5.—Capt. Hans Bertram, German aviator, and his companion, a man named Clausman, who have been missing since May 17, were found alive yesterday.

The two aviators dropped out of sight after they took off from Koppang Island on a flight to Darwin. The first news of their fate came in the middle of June, when natives handed over to a missionary a handkerchief and cigarette case on which were the initials “H. B.”

The natives found footprints of two men going southward about 100 miles north of Wyndham. Afterward the plane was found and with it a message saying the flyers had gone into the bush. It was feared then they had been murdered by the native tribes and a search was begun immediately.

The aviators told a tale of harrowing experiences and suffering which beset them since they landed 80 miles from Wyndham. They were discovered by natives 12 miles from their abandoned plane. The natives supplied them with food and sent for assistance. Bertram just able to walk, was carrying a piece of cooked kangaroo in a towel.

The man had asked for something to eat and was put to work by Andrew Cotes, restaurant manager, at 5 o'clock. Shortly before 8 o'clock he stepped into the back yard, where his body was found a few minutes later. Death apparently was due to natural causes. The name “John Mammet” was tattooed on his left arm. The body was taken to the Morgue.

HUNT BOAT MISSING IN RACE

Craft With Crew of Six New Yorkers Is Unaccounted for in Atlantic Ocean.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Hampered by rain, more than 100 Coast Guard vessels searched the Atlantic from New London to Norfolk in vain yesterday for the Ketch Curlew, missing with its crew of six New Yorkers on a race from Montauk Point, Long Island, to Bermuda.

Commanded by Nat Blum, young city engineer, who had no ocean racing experience, the 48-foot Ketch left with 24 yachts June 25. Only the Curlew and the Bermuda fishermen Spanish Rose are unaccounted for. The Spanish Rose, however, is manned by a crew seasoned by years of fighting Atlantic storms.

The Curlew is owned by David Rosenfield of the Bronx. "It is possible that her sails carried away," he said, "and that her crew are trying to limp in with the help of a jury rig and the auxiliary motor. The loss of the sails would not be so bad as the loss of a rudder."

REPEAL STANDS OUT AS ISSUE IN PRESS COMMENT

Many Papers Call It Paramount Question; Some Regret It Overshadows Economic Problem.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Editorials gathered by the Associated Press from hundreds of large and small newspapers disclose that among all the issues raised in the party platform, prohibition—or, rather, what shall be done about prohibition—is the absorbing topic of local comment and agitation in every state.

Many of the newspapers speak of the Democratic plank favoring repeal and the Republican plank favoring submission as presenting the one paramount question to be decided in November, overshadowing even the presidential outcome.

Those who disagree with this view take three directions: A few contend there is no difference in effect between the two planks. Others hold that no real referendum is possible in the present campaign, because the prohibition issue is intertwined with grave economic problems. Still others point out that, regardless of the outcome, it is Congress and not the President or party conventions which must act if there is to be actual revision.

No Evidence of Actual Shift in the party alignments of partisan newspapers is presented, although in some sections of the South the editors warn the Democrats of wet-dry schisms, and some of the Republican independent journals in anti-prohibition territory condemn Republican "pussyfooting" and flirt with the Democratic repeal plank.

One considerable group of presumably wet advocates analyzes both party planks to assert that national prohibition is doomed. They are answered by militant dries who insist the Chicago conventions both were swept by wet hysteria and that second thoughts will be better.

Big dailies of New York, Chicago and kindred industrial centers unite in rejoicing that both conventions went farther toward the wet side than expected. The view is far from unanimous, however, even among the nation's largest and most influential papers.

"The American people must decide whether they want to stop prohibition entirely, and leave the way open to the saloon and old condition," says the Kansas City (Mo.) Star, "or whether they will hold the benefits that have been gained under prohibition and discard its abuses under a moderate change of the existing system."

From Maine to California, the San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle declares the chief party difference is "that the Republican platform seeks to keep the prohibition question out of party politics, where it does not belong, and in which it cannot be settled, while the Democratic party seeks to drag it into the presidential election."

The Los Angeles (Cal.) Times remarks: "Unsatisfactory to prohibitionists as was the Republican platform, the Democratic plank leaves them nowhere to go except into the Republican ranks, and this they will do by wholesale in many states."

"Both parties stand equally for liberalization of the eighteenth amendment," says the Lewiston (Me.) Evening Journal, and in Texas the Houston Chronicle puts it this way: "Under the platform adopted by either the Republicans or the Democrats, the ultimate power to reject or ratify rests with the people themselves in precisely the same way, whichever plank you academically prefer."

"Stamped In; Stamped Out." "The Democrats need money and lots of it to finance their 1932 campaign," says the Denver (Colo.) Post, "and the only source of revenue they can find is the booze interests which are willing to spend millions in a fight to repeal prohibition."

The Cincinnati (O.) Times-Star says: "The country was stamped into prohibition; it is fair enough that it should be stamped out."

"Both platforms are wrong in giving so much weight to liquor," says the Detroit (Mich.) News. The Yuma (Ariz.) Sentinel observes that "it will be fine for the politicians if they can slip the voters a little beer and make them forget their troubles."

"Return to Common Sense." "The Democratic repeal plank is a sign of the return of common sense," says the Youngstown (O.) Vindicator. "The first definite and decisive step toward national prosperity," says the Seattle (Wash.) Daily Times of the repeal indorsement.

Says the Philadelphia (Pa.) Record: "No citizen could ask more."

The Baltimore (Md.) Evening Sun applauds: "Down with speis; up with beer. In essence, that is the prohibition plank the Democratic party adopted. All honest men will rejoice."

"Greatest Democratic Asset." The Oil City (Pa.) Derrick states it as the general opinion that the Democratic pronouncement "will be the greatest asset of the Democratic party in the coming campaign," but adds that the Democrats should present a workable plan. The Salt Lake City (Utah) Desert News predicts that "between now and November the generation that voted for prohibition will wake up to the danger, and the battle will not be so easy as the Democratic leaders believe."

The Laurel (Miss.) Leader-Call: "The repeal plank will afford a good fight in many a Southern State."

The Natchez (Miss.) Democrat: "The cardinal principle of Democracy is that the majority shall rule and, in view of the vote, the question should be regarded as settled."

The Sumter (S. C.) Item: "We believe it (the repeal plank) will strengthen the party enormously."

The Dallas (Tex.) Journal: "The party will have to stage its hardest fight in these (Southern) states."

The Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal: "The only certainty in the Republican liquor plank is the overlordship of the Federal Government in the control of a police regulation. The menace involved will make many Southerners, regardless of their belief about prohibition, think hard."

The Shreveport (La.) Times says the repeal plank "gives the nation what it wants," while the Marshall (Tex.) Messenger declares the convention "voted to split the party wide open," and the Charlottesville (Va.) Daily Progress predicts that Bishop Cannon probably will join the Republicans again, "but apparently with a vastly less brave display than four years ago."

The Republican Colorado Springs

(Colo.) Gazette declares "the Democrats did what the Republican convention wanted to do."

The Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat and Chronicle complains that dry sentiment among the delegates "was given no opportunity to express itself."

"Extremely Unwise Step." "In adopting the repeal plank, the Democratic convention took an extremely unwise step," says the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News.

"Repeal of prohibition means a return of the saloon," insists the Wheeling (W. Va.) News. The New York (N. Y.) Daily News complains because the Democrats advised against return of the saloon at all.

The Peoria (Ill.) Journal says: "The nation has suffered from prohibition as a moral issue. It now bids fair to suffer from prohibition as a political issue."

"A Noble Experiment." Washington (D. C.) Post: "The election of the next President may turn upon this question, and upon no other. The Democratic party stakes its existence upon this plank. It is a noble experiment."

Says the New York World-Telegram and other Scripps-Howard newspapers: "At last prohibition repeal is in sight. The Democratic platform joins the issue. The Democrats have made a wise move politically."

The St. Joseph (Mo.) News Press: "The nation knows where the two parties stand and they are as far apart as the poles."

BOW OF NEW DIRIGIBLE IS LIFTED INTO PLACE

Ceremonies at Akron as Construction of Macon Enters Final Stages.

By the Associated Press.
AKRON, O., July 5.—The navy's newest giant dirigible, the 755-foot U. S. S. Macon, entered the final stages of construction today, after a ceremony accompanying the lifting of its bow.

A delegation of citizens from Macon, Ga., participated yesterday in the ceremony as the 75-foot section was hoisted into place. It virtually completed the framework of the 6,500,000 cubic foot craft, which now is expected to be ready for flight by January.

The Macon, being built at the Goodyear-Zeppelin plant in Akron, will resemble its sister ship, the U. S. S. Akron, in shape, dimensions and equipment, including machine gun batteries and accommodations for carrying several fighting airplanes.

It is intended to give the Macon a maximum speed of approximately 80 miles an hour and a non-refueling cruising range (at slower speed) of nearly 11,000 miles. With the Akron the Macon will be the world's largest and fastest dirigibles.

Construction engineers sent a telephone message to Mrs. Frederick W. Lohmann, wife of a Goodyear-Zeppelin executive, when all was in readiness for the bow-raising ceremony.

Seated on a platform with the Georgia delegation, Mrs. Lohmann handed a corsage bouquet of roses to Miss Susan Myrick, young Macon newspaper woman. Miss Myrick then blew a whistle as the signal for four crews of workmen to start the bow into place.

Two winches and a crane did the actual lifting and the whole procedure required only 45 minutes, a new record for the job.

Nearly 15,000 persons stood inside the big building, where the Macon is being constructed, to watch the ceremony.

CITY UTILITIES REDUCE TAXES

Littlefield (Tex.) Plants Pay Town's Operating Expenses.

By the Associated Press.
LITTLEFIELD, Tex., July 5.—Littlefield's tax rate for 1932 will be reduced from $1.50 at present, to not less than $1.25, T. S. Sales, Mayor, and Homer Hall and Pat Boone, Commissioners, announce.

Bonded indebtedness, including warrants amounting to $100,000. The rate will be high enough to meet the sinking fund requirements and to build up a reserve. Revenues from the city water and sewer plants the past year were sufficient to meet current operating expenses of the city and also to pay off past indebtedness of $2900, the officers said.

MELLON ADVISES U. S. CITIZENS TO FORGET LOSSES

Confidence Will Return When People Think of What They Have, He Tells London Audience.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, July 5.—Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon told the American Society last night confidence would return in the United States "just as soon as we are able to think again in terms of what we have and what we are, rather than what we have lost."

He was speaking at the society's Fourth of July dinner, which was also addressed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, New York.

"Today we are suffering from a lack of confidence," Mellon began, "not as regards funds, but only as regards the best means of overcoming the difficulties immediately ahead. These difficulties we shall overcome in time."

"All sources of our national wealth are still there. We still have our vast natural resources, our great industrial organization with its complete and modern equipment, and as efficient laborers as any to be found in the world."

Dr. Butler declared that "the interdependence of nations is the twentieth century corollary of the Declaration of Independence."

"We can no longer solve the problems of the twentieth century," he continued, "by reciting the maxims of the eighteenth century or Shibboleths of the nineteenth century."

"How can we be isolated, when man's words spoken after dinner are heard from Moscow to San Francisco?"

Minister to Denmark Assails Critics of Americans.

By the Associated Press.
REBILD PARK, Jutland, July 5.—The United States Minister to Denmark, F. W. B. Coleman, in an Independence day address here attacked those people who represent Americans as "the Shylocks of the world."

Independence day was celebrated, in accordance with time-honored custom, in this park which is the only American public park in another country.

Prior to Coleman's address there were speeches by several visiting Americans, including Dr. Julius Jensen of St. Louis.

In the course of his remarks, Coleman said:

"Most people think that a Government is possessed of wealth which is liquid and can be lent out to any needy borrower."

"Our foreign loans during and after the last war were the contributions of a large part of our citizens who were persuaded to draw their savings from the banks, to sell securities, and to bring into the open their hoarded funds in order to meet the demands and needs of certain European nations."

"Later on, when these debts came to be refunded, we scaled them down to a great extent, all at the cost of our citizen contributors who paid the difference in taxes."

"And still the cry goes on that we are the Shylocks of the world. The morale of every European debtor has sunk pretty low when either Government or press lends itself to this propaganda."

REPEAL STANDS OUT AS ISSUE IN PRESS COMMENT

Ledger thinks that "both parties offer wet planks."

"The Democratic platform marks the dawn of sounder thinking," says the Cleveland (O.) Plain Dealer.

"The reassuring inference to be drawn from the prohibition repeal plank is that in the end political parties do catch up with the movements of popular opinion," observes the Baltimore (Md.) Sun.

The Christian Science Monitor (Boston, Mass.): "The attitude of the noisier sections of the wet crowds at both conventions implied that these elements do not wish to hear or consider reason."

The Minneapolis (Minn.) Tribune "believes it will stand to the everlasting shame of both conventions that they chose to wrangle over prohibition and give that issue paramount consideration at a time of grave national emergency."

The Republican Sacramento (Cal.) Bee says: "Other things being equal, the action of the Democrats should give them a tremendous advantage in November."

Josephus Daniels' Democratic Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer says: "There is a wide difference of opinion as to what will be the effect of the repeal declaration."

Many think it is a serious mistake which might be fatal if the Hoover administration had not failed in enforcement and in looking both ways."

HOOVER SEEKS FUNDS FOR HIS RELIEF GROUP

President in Special Message Asks Congress for $120,000 to Continue Work.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—President Hoover, in a brief message to Congress today, asked for a special appropriation of $120,000 to continue activities of the President's Organization on Unemployment Relief. The Chief Executive pointed out that Congress had omitted an appropriation for the unemployment relief organization, headed by Walter S. Gifford, in the second deficiency bill recently enacted.

The special message said: "This organization, of which Walter S. Gifford is director, is composed of leading men and women throughout the Union and has served to establish and co-ordinate state and local volunteer effort in relief of distress."

"The organization has secured in a large way the co-operation of industry and labor, of national social welfare organizations, and has assisted in mobilizing a large amount of voluntary funds and administrative local resources to the best advantage."

"This organization is the only agency for national co-ordination and stimulation for the multitude of voluntary efforts and in a clearing house to these thousands of organizations with suggestions and methods for the alleviation of unemployment distress."

"Should this organization be discontinued, not only would its important functions of stimulation of private giving and co-ordination be destroyed, but there would be grave danger of national, state and local volunteer groups concluding that services such as they have rendered were no longer necessary."

"Voluntary effort amongst our people is of far more importance both morally and financially than the direct aid of local or other governmental agencies. To demobilize this organization might easily create a widespread confusion and bring great hardships when the need is greatest."

"It is obviously of utmost importance that the action be taken which shall in any way diminish voluntary efforts. Continuance of this organization with its background of experience is, in my opinion, most essential to the intelligent carrying out of the provisions of all relief activities whether private or public."

12,896 SEEK WORK IN JUNE; JOBS ARE FOUND FOR 881

Registration in June 4626 Greater Than in May, Citizens' Committee Bureau Reports.
The Employment Bureau of the Citizens' Committee at 1806 Washington avenue, received 12,896 applications for work during June and found jobs for 881. Of these 411 were permanent.
Registration during June was 4626 greater than in May and the number of jobs found was 280 greater.

Leo McCarthy, director of the bureau, said laborers, housewives and salesmen were in greatest demand. "While the bureau is finding more jobs," he said, "these increases have been small compared with the number registering. It has been encouraging, however, to find an increasing number of large employers calling on the bureau for workers."

GOES TO JAIL FOR EXPERIENCE

Woman Playwright Prefers Prison to Fine.
NEW YORK, July 5.—Dorothy Fletcher, 31 years old, Santa Monica (Cal.) playwright, elected to go to jail today rather than pay a fine of $50 on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. She pleaded guilty in Bronx Traffic Court, and was taken to the detention room, to be committed to a cell in the women's division of the Bronx County Jail for three days.

Answering questions in the detention room, she said she elected to go to jail because "I've never been in jail before, and because I want the experience; it may help me with my writing." "Just to think," she said as an afterthought, "my father is a canon in the Cathedral at Leicester, England."

HURT IN FALL OFF CLIFF

Woman on Picnic Injured Near Oregon, Ill.
By the Associated Press.
OREGON, Ill., July 5.—Mrs. Dorothy Englekefer, 26 years old, is in a hospital here seriously injured as the result of falling yesterday from the top of Castle Rock, a high cliff on the Rock River, five miles from here.

Mrs. Englekefer and her husband, Hiram, a farmer residing near Omaha, Ill., were members of a picnic party that had spent the day at Castle Rock. Shortly before the time set for departure she and her husband climbed 150 feet to the top of the rock. While standing there, her husband reported, she suddenly lost her balance.

BODY OF W. D. NIENHAUS FOUND

The body of William Douglas Nienhaus, 43 years old, 2783 Clara avenue, who had been missing from his home 12 days, was found Sunday by two fishermen in Grand Canyon, near Granite City. Identification was established by a package of paper matches bearing his name and address. A coroner's jury returned an open verdict yesterday.

The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the Mullen Undertaking Co., 5165 Delmar boulevard, to Free Cemetery.

ACCUSED OF FATAL STABBING IN COUNTY INQUEST VERDICT

Floyd Allen, Charged With Killing Howard Riley, Has Not Yet Been Apprehended.

A verdict of homicide naming Floyd Allen, 1626 North Sixteenth street, as the slayer of Howard Riley, 23 years old, 1314A North Market street, was returned by a coroner's jury at Overland today. Riley was stabbed to death early Sunday in St. Louis County when he stopped his automobile to remonstrate with two men on the road.

Deputy Sheriff Klein of St. Louis County testified that Vernon Riley, a brother of Howard, who was in the automobile and who was stabbed by the slayer, had named Allen. Vernon Riley is at City Hospital.

Arnold Woods, 1411 Warren street, a member of the party which had attended a dance at Jennings, said he was walking down the road nearby with Allen when the Riley brothers drove by and words were exchanged which led to the fight. Another young man said he had later picked up Allen in his automobile, taking him to St. Louis, and that Allen had blood on his face. He said he had last seen Allen in South St. Louis. Allen has not been arrested.

(Above) Dr. DARTIGUES, former president of the Société des Chirurgiens (Society of Surgeons) of Paris and also former president of the Société de Médecine de Paris. One of the most eminent gynecologists of Europe whose surgical skill is universally recognized. He is the author of a number of brilliant medical works, notably "Le Renouveau de l'Organisme" and "La Chirurgie des Fibromes."

Dr. Dartigues says:

"The ideal material for sanitary pads has been discovered at last. Its silky softness, combined with its greatly multiplied absorbency and moisture-proofed back, make it entirely unique. Women tell me that it is utterly chafeless—and that it practically ends the discomfort associated with sanitary pads before."

"As a gynecologist, I am fully aware of the physical and psychological complications which often result from harsh, chafing pads. For this reason, I earnestly recommend Veldown—not only because it does away with discomfort, but because it is infinitely safer from many standpoints."

FIVE-MILE CLIMB AND POWER DIVE PROPOSED FOR AIR RACES

Polish Club Offers Trophy for Spectacular Event at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, July 5.—A five-mile straight up and down race probably will be added to the National Air Races to be conducted Aug. 27 to Sept. 5. Cliff W. Henderson, managing director, said today. "The pilots would climb to an imaginary pylon five miles above the Cleveland Airport and do a power dive back to within 40 feet of the ground.

Henderson predicted the event, while open to both commercial and military ships, eventually would become a gauge of the engine performance, climbing, diving and load carrying ability of the military craft of various nations.

The event was suggested by the Aero Club of Poland, which promised to donate a trophy bearing the white eagle of Poland. The trophy would become the possession

WOUNDED SLAYER ENDS LIFE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 5.—Police decided today Harry B. Campbell, paroled convict who shot and killed Frank J. Quinn, a holdup, committed suicide after being wounded dangerously by the victim's widow, Mrs. Quinn, who was behind the prescription counter, shot Campbell as he was fleeing across the street. Officers said powder marks on Campbell's forehead indicated he had taken his own life.

PROHIBITION PARTY MEETS, TRYING TO NOMINATE BORAH

Advance Pledges of Dry Groups Favorable to Senator for Presidency Are Sought at Indianapolis.

By the Associated Press. INDIANAPOLIS, July 5.—The prohibition party, expecting recent developments in the wet-dry controversy to produce a great increase in its strength, began its national convention here today. D. Leigh Colvin, New York, national chairman, who is seeking to make United States Senator William E. Borah the party's presidential nominee, called the session to order.

The situation regarding the Idaho Senator's acceptance of the nomination was unchanged. He had neither refused nor consented to accept the leadership of the party.

Colvin and others associated with him were confident Borah eventually would agree to head the ticket. To induce Borah to accept, Colvin's group was negotiating with various national temperance organizations in an attempt to obtain assurances of their support for the Senator.

Borah's friends in Washington, however, believed the Senator's answer would be in the negative. He has refused to support President Hoover for re-election because of the Republican re-election plank, but he has repeatedly said that economic issues were predominant and that the prohibition question was a poor basis for a successful third party.

Clinton W. Howard, Rochester, N. Y., delivering the keynote address, challenged the wet element of the two major parties. He attacked both the Republican and Democratic national platform planks dealing with the liquor question.

"We are ready to meet them on the prohibition issue in constitutional form at the polls," he declared. Bishop James A. Cannon of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was present at the convention. He said he was here principally to see his son, Maj. Richard Cannon, a delegate to the convention from California. The younger Cannon is a candidate for election to the House from his home State.

The major parties were assailed at a mass meeting last night for their prohibition stands. Colvin said, "The Republican wet plank means that Mr. Hoover who approved it and whose close associates and appointees drafted it and whose advisers promoted it in the convention is the most conspicuous turncoat since Benedict Arnold."

"Four years ago he received an unprecedented majority because he stood for the maintenance and enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. Now he stands merely for the enforcement of that which his party is not committed to maintain. He has failed in performing his presidential oath to preserve, defend and protect the Constitution."

"The Republican wet plank means: Allow the states to deal with the liquor problem; it means annihilation of the eighteenth amendment; it means Republican Congressmen are expected to vote in Congress for annihilation of national prohibition; it means Congressmen shall vote for 'states' rights'; it means confusion of the people; it means dry states would have to protect themselves against wet states; it means the liquor interests would accept tremendous profits and the greedy rich would expect to escape their just taxes; it means a hard struggle to save the soul of America; it means the deterioration of politics and American Government."

Borah received a standing ovation when a telegram from him was read at a luncheon of the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement. The message said: "Tell the women to work for the right men for Congress. If the women of America will do their part, there will be no repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

SMITH BACKER EDITORIAL COMMENTS ON ROOSEVELT

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 5.—The Scripps-Howard newspapers, which supported Hoover in 1928 and endorsed Alfred E. Smith for the 1932 Democratic nomination, have expressed as their attitude on Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt the hope that he will give them cause to revise their opinion of him.

An editorial printed in all Scripps-Howard newspapers on the day after Roosevelt's nomination for the Presidency said in part: "This newspaper's opinion of Franklin D. Roosevelt as a public official has been frequently stated. He is now the Democratic nominee. Our opinion stands. Yet we hope with the utmost sincerity that the future conduct of Mr. Roosevelt himself, as Governor and presidential candidate, will give us cause to revise that opinion."

"It is therefore our earnest prayer that Franklin D. Roosevelt may rise to the crisis into which he, as a nominee of his party, now enters."

BODY OF ARISTIDE BRIAND BURIED NEAR HIS OLD HOME

By the Associated Press. COCHEREL, France, July 5.—Aristide Briand's body was buried Sunday in a tomb near his old home here.

Brought from the Passy Cemetery in Paris, where it remained after the imposing national funeral for the former Foreign Minister and peace advocate on March 12, the coffin was lowered into what he had wished to be his last resting place.

Frank B. Kellogg, American co-author with Briand of the famous anti-war pact, and Norman Armour, charge d'affaires of the American Embassy, attended the burial ceremony, at which Premier Edouard Herriot delivered a tribute.

"I never felt more profoundly the value of your advice and example," the Premier said as he faced the coffin, "than now amidst negotiations which I hope and believe will contribute to the appeasement of Europe and the world."

"From here one can best address oneself to the peoples and ask them to avoid with horror all those who advise violence and assure them that France, so long represented by you, wishes for all nations, small and great, justice, peace in fruitful labor and reconciliation."

Flowers that Kill

All Flies or Mosquitoes with a Perfumed Mist

Some years ago it was discovered that a certain field flower grown in Japan drove away winged insects. A shipment was sent to America for testing in a research laboratory. Here an extract was made from the flowers and sprayed in a closed room filled with flies and mosquitoes. Every insect perished at its touch.

Now that extract is the basis of Fly-Tox, developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. Ten years and over $100,000 have been spent by us in perfecting it. This Fly-Tox, used as directed, fills the room with a perfumed mist, at a cost of only 1 or 2 cents. That mist is harmless to people, harmless to anything. But every fly or mosquito that it touches dies at once. And they can't escape it when the room is filled.

These pests are deadly, for they carry the germs of over 30 diseases. They deposit those germs on foods or in blood streams. Many thousands of children die every year from this cause. Fly-Tox rightly used, from your home and keeps it free, in an easy, certain, economical way. Think what that means to you and yours.

FLY-TOX ONLY

A Rex Research Product

Use Fly-Tox only, and always in a new-type Fly-Tox sprayer. Every lot is tested on flies in our laboratory. The efficiency is guaranteed. The odor is pleasant, the extra strength makes it very economical. Use it because nothing is too good for the safety of your home. Go get it today—it's sold everywhere. Harmless to people. Stainless. Made by the Makers of Moth-Tox.

KELLOGG ASSERTS DISARMAMENT IS PATH TO PEACE

Ex-Secretary of State Asails Proposals for Alliances, Superstate and Military Sanctions.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 5.—Declaring armaments were a menace and armed alliances to maintain "balance of power" were a disgrace, Frank B. Kellogg, co-author of the Briand-Kellogg pact outlawing war, said yesterday that the way to security and peace was through disarmament. Kellogg was Secretary of State under President Coolidge.

"I do not believe that the present political unrest in the world indicates another war," Kellogg told the American Chamber of Commerce in an Independence day address. "In my opinion, the cause of unrest . . . is economic rather than the growth of the war spirit."

"Now, what are the remedies? Some advocate alliances of the great nations armed to police the world; some the arming of a superstate, and some military sanctions. I do not believe in the efficacy of any of these remedies."

Armed Alliances Futile.

"War has never been prevented by armed alliances. . . . If you cannot trust nations in their dealings with one another to settle their difficulties by pacific means, you cannot trust them banded or held together by alliances to maintain peace by arming to the teeth."

"This vicious system (balance of power) was one of the first fruits of the intense militant nationalism which emerged from feudalism. To the disgrace of mankind it has lingered on to our day."

"The way to security and peace is through disarmament; and the way to disarm is to disarm."

"Today land and naval armaments are greater than ever before in times of peace and are increasing at an alarming rate. How long will the patience of the waiting masses hold out?"

"In these times of ruinous cost of government, the expenditure for armaments is not only responsible to a large degree for taxation, but is a menace to the peace of the world."

Hope for French Wineries.

Charles G. Loeb, president of the Chamber, told the audience that the organization was working for a general treaty of commerce, and he alluded to the two recent agreements on trade relations signed recently.

"I know," he added, "that all the Frenchmen will be happy to see that the American politics point towards the annulment of the prohibition law."

"There is in America a prodigious turn against the eighteenth amendment, and it seems possible that before long France will see the United States open its doors again to an important French commerce."

President Alfred Lebrun of France appealed to the United States as his own country—"two great world democracies"—to strive for liberty of the world by mutual sacrifices and by fructifying their centuries-old friendship.

DREISER FOR COMMUNISM
Novelist to Vote That Ticket, He Announces.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Theodore Dreiser, novelist who frequently has declared his sympathy with the Russian Soviet Government, announced today through his secretary that he intended to vote the Communist ticket in the coming presidential election.

"Capitalism," Dreiser's statement said, "has failed as a system of government. In a land overflowing with natural resources which could have been developed and organized for the mental and physical welfare of the nation, it has contented itself with greedily and brutally rearing for the few the opportunities and privileges which mere decency would have suggested be extended to all."

NOLTE TO BACK HERTENSTEIN
Comptroller Announces Support of Candidate for Sheriff.

Comptroller Nolte announced today that he would support Charles Hertenstein, former chairman of the Efficiency Board, for the Republican nomination for Sheriff. Ordinarily Nolte does not participate in primary contests apart from his own office, but he said: "Hertenstein is a good friend of mine and I believe he would make a good Sheriff. I intend to vote for him."

Mayor Miller is supporting Park Commissioner Pape, chairman of the Republican City Committee, for the nomination for Sheriff. The Mayor and Nolte are not friendly politically.

BOY SCOUT TO GET GOLD MEDAL FOR SAVING WOMAN'S LIFE

New Athens Youth Rescued Mrs. Charles Van Gampier From Kaskaskia River.

Joseph J. Tolan, 19 years old, New Athens, Ill., will receive a gold medal of the Boy Scout National Court of Honor for heroism in saving the life of a young woman in the Kaskaskia River last summer, it was announced today.

Tolan is a member of Boy Scout Troop 29 of New Athens and is a graduate of first aid and rescue work in the scout organization. He rescued Mrs. Charles Van Gampier, Belleville, after she was dragged into deep water by an alligator dog she had been holding. Tolan used artificial respiration for 25 minutes to revive her.

A gold medal for outstanding scout service in Illinois during 1931 was presented to Tolan last month by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A. H. SCRIBNER, PUBLISHER, DIES

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT KISCO, N. Y., July 5.—Arthur Hawley Scribner, since 1928 president of the publishing firm of Charles Scribner's Sons, died yesterday at his country home. He was 73.

With his brother, Charles, he started "Scribner's Magazine" in 1887. They were also responsible to a large extent for Americans' interest in the works of George Meredith, Robert Louis Stevenson, James M. Barrie and John Galsworthy.

FIREWORKS PLANE CRASHES
Pilot Jumps, but Is Killed at Ohio Celebration.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, July 5.—William Rosier, 30 years old, of Woodlawn, was killed Saturday night when his airplane fell 3000 feet at Coney Island. Rosier, president of the Queen City Flying Service, was piloting an airplane carrying aloft fireworks.

He had released flares and fired several bombs when the plane went into a spin. Before Rosier could cut loose his parachute and pull the rip cord he was 50 feet from the ground. Many persons who watched the falling airplane streaming flares in its wake believed it to be a stunt until the machine crashed near where Rosier had fallen.

SLAIN CHIEF OF POLICE BURIED AT HARRISBURG

Relatives Refuse to Claim Body of One of Three Who Killed Dan Law and Patrolman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
 HARRISBURG, Ill., July 5.—Chief of Police Daniel Law, slain with James Grady Sutton, State highway patrolman, Friday night, by three men in a stolen automobile, was buried yesterday afternoon following services in the Methodist Church here. Services for Sutton were held today from the same church.

Wesley Sheward, 25 years old, an unemployed coal miner, one of the three men the officers sought to question, was shot and killed by Chief Law before Law was slain by Sheward's companions, who escaped. Sheward's body was found in the stolen coupe, which was abandoned in a churchyard 10 miles north of here. Relatives have refused to claim the body, which probably will be buried by the county.

Two suspects arrested at Fairfield have convinced authorities that they are not Eddie Brewer and Neal McGinley, believed to have been in the stolen car with Sheward, but are said to have been implicated in a robbery at Fairfield, and are held. The prisoners describe themselves as Joseph Vauky and James Yeager of St. Louis. Four other suspects were released after questioning, and the search for Brewer and McGinley continues.

Law and Sutton were shot and killed as they were riding on the running board of the stolen coupe occupied by three men, whom they were escorting to police headquarters. When stopped by the officers the men exhibited a bill of sale which named Sheward, Brewer and McGinley as joint owners. With the recovery of the machine it was learned that it had been stolen at Drakesboro, Ky.

BOY, 13, STRUCK IN FACE, CHEST BY SHOTGUN PELLETS
 Theodore Schlermeier, Belleville, Wounded by Shot Man Thought Had Been Taken From Shell.
 Theodore Schlermeier, 13 years old, 725 East Garfield avenue, Belleville, was wounded in the face and chest yesterday by pellets from a shotgun fired by William Frech, Probate Clerk of St. Clair County, in a Fourth of July celebration at the Frech home, 900 East Main street, Belleville.

The Schlermeier boy was playing with a group of children at the home of a neighbor of Frech's. To amuse children at his own home and those next door, Frech shook the shot from a shotgun shell, put the shell in a gun and fired it. About 20 pellets, overlooked in unloading, struck the Schlermeier boy's chest and face. He was treated at a hospital and taken home.

RICHMOND HEIGHTS VOTING ON COMMISSION GOVERNMENT
 Mayor Favors the Plan and No Organized Opposition Has Developed.
 A proposal for the commission form of government in Richmond Heights is being voted on today. The commission plan is favored by Mayor J. J. Flanagan and other civic officials, and has no organized opposition.

If the plan carries, the present government by Mayor and Board of Aldermen will be supplanted by a Mayor and two Commissioners elected for the entire city rather than to represent wards. The elective offices of Collector and City Marshal will be abolished and all minor officials, including those two, will be appointed by the Mayor and Commissioners.
 Richmond Heights has a population of 9100.

Bill Dickey, Yankees' Catcher, Indefinitely Suspended by Harridge

CHICAGO, July 5.—Catcher Bill Dickey of the New York Yankees today was indefinitely suspended by President William Harridge of the American League for assaulting Carl Reynolds, Washington outfielder, in the first game at Washington yesterday. Reynolds' jaw was fractured when Dickey swung on him after a misplay at the plate. Harridge, president of the Washington club, described the act as "the most atrocious act of ballplayer ever perpetrated on another player."

Beyond the bare announcement that Dickey had been "suspended indefinitely," President Harridge had nothing to say. It was believed, however, that the New York catcher would be kept out of the game at least until Reynolds recovered from a fractured jaw.

President Griffith of the Senators telegraphed President Harridge demanding that Dickey be released from the limit and be suspended.

TRACY COX HERE FOR BOUT WITH TERRY FRIDAY

By W. J. McGoogan.

Tracy Cox, hard-punching lightweight from Indianapolis, who meets Lou Terry in a 10-round bout at Battery A, Friday night, arrived here this afternoon to finish his training for the match. Cox wasn't due until tomorrow, but he changed his mind and decided to get on the ground a day earlier.

Terry has been doing some hard training in preparation for his meeting with probably the hardest puncher he has ever faced. He boxed three rounds with Dave Barry yesterday and appeared to be in good form. Barry also is to box a 10-rounder on the program.

Cox, whose knockout record indicates that he should defeat Terry easily, is rated the outstanding contender for Kid Chocolate's 130-pound championship. He has bowled over some eight opponents in 11 bouts this year.

Terry, however, has never been knocked down in his long career and hopes to be able to establish himself with a good fight against Cox.

Jack Tippet, matchmaker for the Walter Hatzfeld Post, which is sponsoring the show, announced that he has signed Johnny Miles for the four-round curtain-raiser, while he has closed with Chick Rains and Eddie Foster for a 10-rounder. Foster defeated George Daw his last out, while Rains won from Les Conklin, then valloped Stanley McRae. Both of these men were considerably heavier than Rains, while Foster will scale just about the same as Chick.

Johnny Kaiser is to start his summer campaign with a 10-round fight. John hasn't fought for some little time. He is getting into condition for a fight he will make soon against Barry.

California's "World Beater" Beaten at Favorite Distance

BILL CARR, Pennsylvania star, is shown leading BEN EASTMAN, Stanford U. middle-distance runner, to the tape in the intercollegiate championship 440-yard run in the biggest upset of the annual title races on the coast. Carr's time was 47 seconds, beating the meet and recognized world record.

LINDSEY ROUTED AS HOWLEY'S MEN HIT SAFELY 7 TIMES

By J. Roy Stockton.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, July 5.—Manager Street re-arranged his outfield for the final game of the series with the Reds. George Watkins went to left and Ray Blades played right with Orsatti in center. The pitchers were Jim Lindsey for the Cardinals and Lucas for the Reds.

Lindsey retired in the first inning under Hendrick's sacrifice. He then got by until the fifth, when Cincinnati fell upon him and scored three more runs, aided by an error by Gelbert.

Meanwhile, the Cardinals were helpless before Lucas, except in the fourth, when they scored twice, on Gelbert's single, an error and Flowers' double.

HAGEN, JURADO IN EXHIBITION HERE, AUGUST 7

Walter Hagen, Detroit professional, who won the Western open golf championship for the fifth time last week, when he totaled 287 for the 72 holes over the Canterbury course at Cleveland, with his scoring partner, Jose Jurado, the Argentine star, will appear in an exhibition match at the Meadow Brook Club here, Aug. 7. It was announced by officials of the club last night.

Bill and Francis Schwartz, professionals at the local club, will probably be the opponents for "the Hag" and his partner in the match here. Definite arrangements are expected to be made in the next few days.

Hagen and Jurado are at present making a tour of the country under the direction of Robert Harlow of Detroit.

Browns Move on to Boston With Badly Crippled Squad

By James M. Gould.

EN ROUTE TO BOSTON, July 5.—Somewhere today, the sun may be shining and the memories of the Fourth of July pleasant, but the celebration the Browns had planned for the Tigers in Detroit, yesterday, was in every aspect a dud. Certainly there is no reason for the Browns' gloom. They lost the first game to the Tigers 4-3, because they could get only one hit off the first baseman Earl Whitehill. They lost the second because they couldn't make their 13 hits off the Sorrell behave in a run-making way and dropped the decision, 4-0.

MINNEAPOLIS REGAINS LEAD IN ASSOCIATION

CHICAGO, July 5.—Minneapolis, Columbus and Indianapolis were still playing tag with the leadership of the American Association, and Minneapolis was it today.

The Millers, in second place as they started their July Fourth exercises, took two falls out of St. Paul to bounce back into the lead as Indianapolis, which started out in front, lost two to the seventh-place Louisville Colonels. The Indians not only fell off the peak, but sagged to third position as Columbus improved its position by defeating Toledo twice.

MERRY CAROLINE WINS CLOSING AQUEDUCT STAKE

By the Associated Press.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, July 5.—The Long Island summer season was concluded here today with the Queens County Jockey Club offering a well-balanced gateway card. The Peter Pan purse, five-furlong dash for two-year-olds, was the most attractive event and resulted in Mrs. T. W. Anderson's Merry Caroline rewarding the talent.

The field of five left in good order and Merry Caroline dashed to the front after a few strides. Jockey J. Mann took her under light restraint, but she opened up several lengths over Flamborough and White Thorne. True Sweep could not improve his position, nor could Inspector. Flamborough closed steadily through the final furlongs, rode out the winner. Merry Caroline paid 11 to 20. The time was 1:25.25.

HOWELL AND SAVAGE TO BATTLE TOMORROW; 55 IN AMATEUR MEET

Fifty-five fighters from St. Louis and Illinois and Missouri towns will romp through their final training session this afternoon and evening in preparation for tomorrow night's all-star Mississippi Valley Amateur Association boxing card at the Battery A open-air arena.

Matchmaker George Willeman and his two assistants, Dan O'Keefe and Art Craig, last night added another feature to the program. The new flyweight set to bring together Elmer Howell, Mount City 115-pounder, and Elmer Savage, of the Business Men's gymnasium.

A former senior flyweight titleholder, Tony Viviano, is all set for his special bout with Morgan Lindsefelter.

In two welterweight scraps, George Bish of O'Keefe's glove troupe, who fought Champion Joe Huff to a standstill on the last Saturday card, meets Joe Conley, Otto Brezlar's protégé, and Jasper Cusumano, fighting Jefferson A. C. Italian, opposes Christ Paschott, Granite City Bulgarian. These four battles are evenly matched and the winners will be matched for the national A. A. championship later in the campaign.

Raymond Womack, Golden Gloves star from Chicago, reported in time for a workout for his scrum with Eddie Edson of the National A. A. They emerged victorious in their last matches and indications are that their bout will be one of the best of the evening. Womack's twin, Charley, is also entered on the approaching program.

NINE DEAD, HEAVY PROPERTY DAMAGE IN TEXAS FLOODS

Families Driven From Homes in Lower Reaches of Frio, Guadalupe and Nueces Rivers.

By the Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 5.—From the lower reaches of the Frio, Guadalupe and Nueces Rivers, farmers and ranchmen drove their livestock to the hills today, to escape flood waters which already have resulted in the death of nine persons.

With ample warning from damage done at the headwaters of these rivers, families were moved to safety from farms and small towns in the path of the water rushing toward the Gulf of Mexico. In the area in which the torrential rains of last week-end first caused death and destruction, the waters were receding.

An accurate estimate of the property damage in this ranching and resort country was still impossible. From many remote communities may yet come reports of the loss of life.

There has been a great loss in livestock. Crop damage will be tremendous. Much damage has been done to highways and railroads.

The first San Antonio-El Paso train in three days moved yesterday. Uvalde reported traffic moving on the Southern Pacific but it was thought a week or more would be required to repair damage on the Uvalde and Northern and Missouri Pacific lines.

June 13 their canoes were swamped in Cedar Lake and they spent eight hours in the water clinging to one of the overturned canoes before they reached the island. A report to Royal Canadian mounted police here said they were in "fair" condition.

FASCIST OUTBREAK ON TRAIN IN NEW YORK STATE; ONE SHOT

Group Returning From Celebration of Birth of Garibaldi; Clash Earlier in the Day.
NEW YORK, July 5.—An unidentified Italian was seriously wounded on a Staten Island train last night when returning from a Fascist celebration of the birth of Garibaldi, at which anti-Fascists started a clash.

The train was running into St. George Terminal from Rosebank when a shot was fired by an unidentified person and the victim slumped in his seat. There were many Fascists, anti-Fascists and neutrals in the coaches and turmoil followed. The assailant escaped when the conductor opened the doors to calm the passengers.

Previously, a policeman and a bystander had been slightly injured when anti-Fascists fought to enter a house in Rosebank where the Fascist meeting was being held. Police drove them off and the meeting proceeded. The meeting place is reputed to have once been the home of Garibaldi.

The outbreak started when 200 anti-Fascists gathered in front of the Fascist meeting place and tried in vain to gain entrance. As the man body of a about 2500 Fascists arrived each faction began to heckle the other and the police beat down on the crowd with clubs.

FUJI ISLANDER IN ARCTIC THOUGHT TO HAVE PERISHED

Futile Search Made by Dog Team for Man Who Was Trapper 20 Years.

By the Associated Press.
OTTAWA, Ont., July 5.—James Asesela, Fiji Islander who for 20 years followed the life of a trapper along the Arctic coast and the islands east of Coronation Gulf, has just about been given up for dead.

Royal Canadian mounted police, piecing together information received from Eskimos and in their own investigation, thought the man who preferred the rigors of the North to his native sunny islands, perished on an ice floe north of the Canadian mainland.

Last March Eskimos reported to Father Griffin, Catholic missionary, that Asesela was missing. Superstition prevented them from investigation, so the priest made a reconnaissance which proved futile, and then communicated with the mounted police.

Two constables, traveling by dog team, made an intensive search. In one of Asesela's three camps police found ample food and trapping gear, and their theory is that before the freeze last November the trapper set out for Cape Parry and was lost.

U. S. MUST ADJUST WAR DEBTS, SAYS HERRIOT

They Should Be Fitted to Agreement Being Negotiated at Lausanne or Young Plan Be Continued, Premier Declares.

INTRA-EUROPEAN CANCELLATION URGED

Grandi of Italy Demands Such Action Even as to Reparations — Germany Under Heavy Pressure.

By the Associated Press.
LAUSANNE, Switzerland, July 5.—The United States must adjust war debts to fit the agreement that is being negotiated at the Lausanne conference, or the Young plan will continue, Premier Edouard Herriot of France declared today in a statement to the press.

This declaration climaxed a day of negotiation which led nowhere. Germany came to the conference June 16 saying she no longer could meet the Young plan payments.

She still sticks to that contention. The French Premier's statement was made to the press by way of explanation of the necessity to France of a safeguarding clause in any agreement reached here. Such a clause would protect the French Government in the event that German reparations were materially reduced in the hope that the United States would reduce war debts and that hope proved unfulfilled.

Von Papen's Suggestion.
Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany came forward today with a suggestion that his Government pay a flat sum of 2,600,000,000 marks (approximately $600,000,000) and that in return the creditor Governments annul the judgment of war guilt against Germany and permit her equality of armaments. Herriot categorically refused to discuss political conditions.

The French Premier has been criticized for cutting from 7,000,000,000 marks to 4,000,000,000 marks the amount of the German-backed bond issue which has been suggested for the treaty of Versailles and that he looked upon the total that might be set for Germany to pay as a secondary consideration.

The impression was growing stronger tonight that Chancellor von Papen attached the greatest importance to wiping out the "war guilt" clause for the treaty of Versailles and that he looked upon the total that might be set for Germany to pay as a secondary consideration.

The British Prime Minister, who has been the leader in efforts to compromise the controversy between France and Germany, requested all delegations to be ready to visit him at any hour.

Grandi's Attitude.
Dino Grandi, Italian Foreign Minister, last night demanded complete cancellation of intra-European war debts and reparations.

Grandi's notice to his fellow delegates was served in a statement he gave to the press yesterday.

"What are nations which have debts to meet going to do without reparations receipts from Germany?" Grandi asked. In Italian circles it was intimated Premier Mussolini would insist on a settlement of this question before the conference of adjournment.

With six of the smaller nations showing marked discontent with the five-power plan for a German loan of approximately $1,000,000,000 in lieu of immediate reparations payments, it became apparent that Italy might block any settlement until satisfaction was given on the questions it raised.

Germany was under heavy pressure, however, to accept the five-power plan, which contains a provision linking the reparations settlement with debts due the United States from the World War allies.

Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain served notice he wanted the whole matter cleared up by Thursday as he intended to return to London then.

Germany was reported to have made a counter-proposal to the five-power plan suggesting a payment of about $500,000,000 in cash, 10 installments, beginning in 1937, the payment to be the maximum contribution to reconstruction and to replace the proposed $1,000,000,000 bond.

HIRAM JOHNSON HAS HIGH PRAISE FOR ROOSEVELT

Calls Speech "Most Important of Our Day" And Finds Breaking of Old Tradition "Exhilarating."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 5.—Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep.), California, aroused speculation yesterday over the part he will play in the approaching presidential campaign by issuing a statement highly praising the manner in which Franklin D. Roosevelt, accepted the Democratic nomination.

The Californian, who has been a strong critic of the Hoover administration, refused, however, to discuss at this time his plans for the campaign.

Paying tribute to Roosevelt's speech of acceptance and the manner in which it was delivered, he said:

"There was something fine, and gallant, and exhilarating in Roosevelt's scrapping the old tradition and at once when nominated arranging to meet the Democratic convention.

"The imaginative get a thrill from the Democratic candidate writing in a speeding airplane the most important speech of our day, and in his whole history.

"The writing of such a speech under such circumstances is a tribute to the poise and the good nerves of the writer. It is a tribute, too, to frankness and exhibits no fear of expression of views.

"What an improvement is this innovation over the old tradition, where a candidate sits like a sphinx for weeks searching out weasel words and ambiguous phrases, with duplicitous and doubtful meaning, that may be read in any fashion by any person or group.

"May the new human, manly method adopted by the Democratic candidate and its candor and forthrightness prevail in the coming campaign."

Last fall, on his way to Washington for the opening of Congress, Johnson gave out a statement suggesting that Hoover withdraw as Republican candidate.

When Congress met, Johnson led the opposition to President Hoover's intergovernmental debt moratorium and has constantly criticized the administration on its foreign policy and its handling of the relief situation.

Pinchot, Long a Friend of Roosevelt, Declines to Commit Himself.
HARRISBURG, Pa., July 5.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania declined to answer the question uppermost in the minds of Pennsylvania's delegates to the Democratic national convention as they arrived home.

The delegates have been speculating as to whether the Governor, long a friend of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, would bolt the Republican party and support the Democratic nominee.

"I have nothing at all to say about politics at this stage of the game," Pinchot said at his Millford home.

Rumors that Pinchot would go over to Roosevelt, which began last winter, buzzed anew when Senator George Norris (Rep.), Neb., came out for the Democratic nominee.

Pinchot, Norris and Roosevelt have many liberal political ideas in common.

TAMMANY HEARS MESSAGE FROM GOV. ROOSEVELT

"Interests of Personal Greed" Primarily Responsible for Present Conditions, He Says.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 5.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for President, yesterday declared himself "assured that the Society of Tammany will follow the banners when the cause of real Democracy is at stake."

Tammany applauded the message, but otherwise gave the Roosevelt candidacy a mixed response. The Governor telegraphed his greeting to Tammany's Independence day celebration, he said, at Tammany's request.

In the message to John F. Curry, Tammany chieftain, the Governor said:

"I am very glad indeed to accord to your request for a word for the historic Independence day celebration of the Society of Tammany. When we remember how small the little party of brave men who signed the Declaration of Independence on that most hallowed of all American anniversaries, when we realize how few their followers, how powerful the great nation they dared to oppose, and how seemingly hopeless their cause, we should be ashamed of that cowardice which makes some of our citizens tremble today for the future of this country. We won that right fight for two reasons: First, because we were unafraid, and, secondly, because our cause was right."

"Enrolled Against Personal Greed."
The Democratic party of this country has enrolled today against influences which are responsible by acts of commission and omission for most of our existing troubles—an enemy still controlled by those interests of personal greed which are primarily responsible for present conditions. They stand arrogant, intolerant as was the British Government of 15 years ago.

"Yet, because we are unafraid, and because we have had the vision in our great platform boldly to declare our own bill of rights, and because, most of all, we fight in a just cause, I am confident that we will win the coming struggle, as did those who signed our independence declaration of so many years ago."

"I am proud to have been chosen as the standard bearer in that fight. I am assured that the Society of Tammany will follow the banners when the cause of real Democracy is at stake."

Smith Joins in Applause.
Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who was greeted with cheering and handclapping, joined in the applause when Gov. Roosevelt's message was read.

Although not on the program, the crowd that filled the Tammany Hall Auditorium shouted for a speech until Smith responded. He spoke briefly on the need for "keeping an eye on the Constitution," avoiding any reference to the Democratic national convention or its outcome.

"With all due respect to Senator Wagner here, my personal and political friend for a quarter of a century," Smith continued, "Congress can talk itself to death and can't hurt this country any. The only way this country can be hurt any is when the people themselves grow careless about the Constitution."

Reference to Prohibition.
"We had a little lesson of that danger in our own lifetime when after the war a little minority, by manipulation through the very Congress that should have protected the interests of this country, put through an amendment that caused more havoc in the last 12 years in the United States."

The balance of Smith's characterization of prohibition was lost in a roar from the crowd.

"But," he concluded when quiet was restored, "thanks be to the Lord in this year of 1932 we are coming to the end of that."

Upon leaving the hall Smith reiterated his "nothing to say" attitude with this explanation:

"I've worked damn hard for the past two weeks and I'm going to get a rest. I'm not going to pin myself down to any time; I'm just going to roam around and do nothing."

This lent support to the understanding that he is giving serious consideration to a European trip. U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, the principal speaker, condemned what he termed the lack of a national policy on the part of the national administration for the last 12 years.

Mingled Applause and Boos.
There was applause and a few scattered boos when Wagner mentioned Roosevelt.

Wagner had said that his proposed public construction program was predicted on "the realization that industry exists for man and not man for industry."

"That purpose," he asserted, "has been the spearhead of the progressive movement fostered by the democracy of the nation. In this State it shaped the policies of Gov. Smith, under whose brilliant and capable hands our national party has just entrusted the presidential nomination."

James A. Farley, new Democratic national chairman, was on the platform. A shouted request from the balcony that he "say a few words" was greeted by a chorus of "noes" from every part of the hall.

Although he had described himself as greatly fatigued, Farley hastened from a Chicago train to a seat on the Tammany platform. He held a handshaking reception after the ceremonies and told inquirers "Why I'm a member of Tammany Hall—a life member."

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE TO ADJOURN UNTIL FALL

Prospects for Immediate Action on Hoover's Reduction Plan Disappear.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, July 5.—Prospects for immediate action on President Hoover's proposal for a one-third reduction in arms disappeared today, when the world disarmament conference began preparations to adjourn until fall.

The Conference Bureau authorized Sir John Simon, British delegate, to draft an adjournment declaration framed along these lines: Tribute to the Hoover proposal as a valuable contribution to the conference; recognition that parts of the Hoover plan dealing with effective and naval forces require considerable time for study by the Powers concerned, and an announcement of sundry points upon which the conference is virtually agreed.

The opinion prevailed that three or four months would be required for study of the Hoover proposals.

Those favoring this course argued that the American President's plan raised questions too deep fundamentally to obtain adoption within the next few weeks.

NORRIS DEMANDS FARM BOARD INQUIRY BE OPENED AT ONCE

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 5.—An immediate investigation of the Farm Board was demanded yesterday by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, author of a resolution for an inquiry.

The Senate ordered the investigation several months ago. Chairman McNary of the Agriculture Committee has made no move, however, to open the inquiry because of the heavy legislative program before the Senate.

"I have made repeated requests," Norris said, "that the chairman of the Agriculture Committee call a subcommittee together and launch this inquiry."

"I don't think the delay is justified. The inquiry ought to have been started long ago."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all, and never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely passing news; always be distinctly independent; never be afraid to attack wrong; whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

JOSEPH PULITZER,
April 16, 1907.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Democratic Platform.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Democratic platform is so sweeping in its demands for liberty and freedom from the restrictions of summary law that it rivals the Bill of Rights and becomes a document akin to the Jewish Magna Carta. And it may well cause a glow of pride when it is realized that Judge Daniel G. Taylor of St. Louis, as a member of the Resolutions Committee at Chicago, helped to draft and enunciate the stimulating phrases of the vital and pertinent prohibition plank of the Democratic party.

So unanimous are the people in their approval of this plank that there will be some amazing and comical reversals of position made this year by candidates, heretofore dry, throughout the length and breadth of the land. It might even change the attitudes of out-state Democratic Congressmen, who, taking the voice of a minority as the ruling opinion, have voted dry on every occasion this year since the first his test—the vote in Congress March 14 on the Beck-Linthicum resolution.

Yes, food is more important than something to drink. But if the City of St. Louis and the State of Missouri were solving the revenue which they would be receiving but for the lex scripta of prohibition, would it be necessary to remove from the roster 32,000 persons who, the local press informs us, cannot be cared for due to exhaustion of relief funds? Or if this revenue had been coming in, as it would but for prohibition, would there be 32,000 hungry, helpless and unemployed persons on that list?

MELVIN D. FULCHER.

1932 Model Panhandling.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A actual colloquy, overheard on Market street, St. Louis:
Bum: Mister, could you spare a poor man 11 cents for a bowl of soup?
Gent: Why the odd cent, my man?
Bum: Why, to pay the Federal tax with, of course.
PASSER-BY.

Resolute Defense of Mr. Hay.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR case, which you made out against Charles M. Hay in your issue on June 25, is merely a confirmation of my letter. While you have not refuted it, it is by stating, "Certainly no Tory is preferable merely because he is an anti-prohibitionist," yet, taken as a whole, it is a case of "my wet candidate, right or wrong, but my dripping candidate," which, in the intense battle cry of the Anti-Saloon League, it was to take your stand against Hay as the measuring stick for candidates, then such champions of human right as Norris and Borah, who, like Hay, are dry at heart, are not properly qualified, if they represent states which are against prohibition.

There may be some truth in your statement that this country cannot exist half wet and half dry, providing the wets and dries were divided by some such line as the Mason and Dixon line, which divided the slave and free states. But, as this is not the case, and the country is not divided into a dry South and a wet North, the ominous warning which you sound does not at all alarm me. Sectional feeling had a good deal to do with the Civil War. There is no such animal in this case.

If you take the stand that to work against prohibition with one hand and to send dries to Congress with the other hand is silly, I cannot see how your position of taking the part of Paul Revere, by arousing the country to the danger from the Power Trust, and then discriminating against the candidate who takes the field with you, is the same of wisdom.

You at one time gave Mr. Hay a compliment in your paper, stating, "We should like to see Charlie fling his faded old dry hat into the ring, for when he is not thrusting his spear through Demon Rum, he is a first-class slayer of far more venomous dragons. I also take the same position, that there are far more venomous dragons than the liquor question, which cannot be met simply by selecting candidates because of their wet or dry leanings."

LOUIS SOLOMON.

A Question for the R. F. C.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HOW did it happen that 59 banks in Chicago did not get aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and why is it that Gen. Dawes secured all the money he needed? Seven banks in Arizona failed Wednesday. Hurrah for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation!

DOD G. GIBSON.

The Birth Control Report.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ALTHOUGH the House Ways and Means Committee recently voted, 20 to 4, against the Hancock-Ratfield birth control bill, a step nevertheless has been taken toward bringing the law into harmony with practice. The text of the report says that the committee did not base its decision on the merits of legalizing the dissemination of contraceptive information. Its position was that it would be inadvisable, at a time when Congress has so many governmental problems demanding immediate solution, to present for consideration a question so controversial in nature as that of legalizing birth control. Whatever the merits of the measure, the fact remains that, owing to the character of the opposition, it would have occasioned long and heated discussion, seriously undesirable in Congress just now.

I. L. D.

ABOLISH THE FARM BOARD.

Whatever else may be said about the administration of Mr. Hoover, it cannot escape being called to account for the rattle-brained adventures of the Federal Farm Board. This misguided agency has squandered in the neighborhood of $500,000,000, exacted from the tax-ridden people, and there is nothing to show for it except vindication of the truism that prices cannot be fixed by law, a principle previously known to everyone with a rudimentary knowledge of economics.

The extent to which the Farm Board has fallen into disfavor even among loyal supporters of the President became unmistakably evident when its operating fund was before the Senate. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, outstanding among administration leaders, who took an active part in the successful Senate fight to reduce the operating fund from $1,000,000 to $600,000, declared the Farm Board had poured $500,000,000 "down a rat hole." He was, he said, more ashamed of his vote in favor of creating the Farm Board than of any other vote he had cast in the 10 years he had been in the Senate.

Protesting against the cut in the operating fund is Chairman James C. Stone, successor to Alexander Legge, as head of the Farm Board. He says that if the House agrees to the Senate cut, it will be necessary to dismiss some 175 employees of the board—about half his force, while the other half will be forced to take payless furloughs. Since these employees constitute a group whose noses are unnecessarily in the public feed trough as well as part of a defunct institution, there is no reason to continue to give them Federal money unless it is understood we have decided to go over to the dole.

The truth of the matter is that it is high time the Farm Board was taken out of its misery. To advance it hundreds of millions of dollars more, as pending bills would do through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, would be sheerest folly, in view of what has happened. It is a sorry and costly settlement, simply to write off the money wasted in wheat and cotton speculation, but we had better do it and be through with the whole thing. Enough damage has been done. Only in the United States Government would such a discredited institution continue to eat up Federal funds for extravagant and unnecessary salaries.

Various meetings of farmers are being held over the Middle West as part of a movement to release the soil tillers from what the promoters rightly call "economic bondage." If the farmers who attend these meetings want to demonstrate that they know what is good for their cause, they will demand the abolition of the Farm Board in terms that the White House and Congress cannot mistake. The farmers of Iowa spoke their minds on the subject when they rejected Senator Brookhart and his devoted support of the Farm Board. It is no wonder that many new faces are expected to go to Washington from the agricultural states after the November election.

To its credit, the Hoover administration has performed the about-face on other matters of importance. It would have lightened the heavy burden which it is carrying if it had had the good sense to abolish its most unfortunate bureaucratic creation, the Federal Farm Board. Now it cannot do it, since the Republican platform indorsed the administration's agricultural policies in glowing terms.

Such are the exigencies of politics, and thus it is that the needs of the country are sacrificed when the fate of a political party is at stake.

Since the Democratic platform condemned "the extravagance of the Farm Board, its disastrous action which made the Government a speculator in farm products, and the unsound policy of restricting agricultural production to the demands of domestic markets," the way is open for the Democrats in Congress to take the lead.

If they do, they will soon find the people behind them.

Abolish the Farm Board.

MR. GARNER FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

The nomination of Speaker Garner for Vice-President was not among the pre-convention rumors, and perhaps the most surprising thing about it is the fact that he accepted it. The office of Speaker of the House is rated as second only to that of the presidency in political power and prestige. It is made to order, one might say, for a person of Mr. Garner's forthright temperament, to whom the leisurely post of the vice-presidency, it would seem, would be cloyingly irksome. Mr. Garner raised no audible objection and will, presumably, enter into the campaign with zest and energy.

The gentleman from Texas is, of course, an experienced legislator, whose equipment might be of practical value to an administration disposed to avail itself of it. But it is the fate of Vice-Presidents to be seen only in the presiding chair of the Senate and on social parade, and never, or hardly ever, heard.

President Harding's effort to give his ticket associate a speaking place in the cast by inviting Mr. Coolidge to attend Cabinet meetings was a courteous, though futile gesture, which was discontinued when Mr. Coolidge took the head of the table. Even the dynamic Dawes, after the "whooper" of his inaugural subsided into the obscurity of second in command.

The only Vice-President the country as a whole has been aware of within a generation was the late Thomas R. Marshall, whose philosophy, a happy blend of Epictetus and Marcus Aurelius, and dressed in the homespun epigrams of Indiana, was front-page stuff. Just how a 13-hour-a-day toiler, as Mr. Garner is reputed to be, can adjust himself to the dinner-guest requirements of the semi-retirement he has been chosen for must be left to the events. Politically, he will, we imagine, add strength to the ticket.

AUSTRALIA'S RADIO PLAN.

Australia has turned to the problem of radio, and her experiments with supervision of that agency will be watched with interest. Characteristically, a bold step has been taken. Class A stations, which are in the majority, have been placed under Government control. Advertising announcements and sponsored programs have been barred. This is even more drastic than Canada's plan, which, with Federal control, limits advertising to 5 per cent of the broadcasting time.

This country's radio commission has warned advertisers to mend their ways, but has hesitated to recommend Government control as an alternative, though it holds out the threat of restrictive legislation if excessive and undesirable selling talks are not curbed. European countries do not meet this problem, for most of them have government control of radio, with no advertising permitted. License tees on radio sets finance the broadcasting of high-grade programs. Radio broadcasting in this country, which mushroomed to vast dimensions in a short period, is still in a period of transition. The efforts of other countries to convert it to a genuine agency of public education and entertainment are worthy of the closest study here.

MR. ROOSEVELT AT CHICAGO.

Gov. Roosevelt has started the campaign with a bang. Flying to Chicago to thank the convention for the honor conferred upon him, his appearance was, he acknowledged, "unprecedented and unusual, but these," as he said, "are unprecedented and unusual times." He gave a practical reason, too, for wishing to do away with the traditional notification ceremony, a stilted piece of flummery, the cost of which may well be saved in the present circumstances.

The speech, itself, was well received by the delegates and will, we believe, be well received by the public. Certainly, Mr. Roosevelt talked a language we all understand, and there was a heartening sincerity in his manner as well as his words. He made a fine impression. Literally and figuratively, he is off to a flying start.

It is evident the candidate found inspiration in the platform which the convention prepared for him. He accepts it "100 per cent." He accepts it in letter and intensely in spirit.

Nothing could be more explicit than his statement on the eighteenth amendment: "The convention wants repeal. Your candidate wants repeal, and I am confident the United States of America wants repeal."

The tariff he described as that "impregnable barbed-wire entanglement," by which we have isolated ourselves "from all the other human beings in all the rest of the world." A bit of rhetorical flourish there, perhaps, but justified by the ruinous consequences of Grundism.

He specifically indorsed the convention's position in the matter of the shorter working week and the shorter day, and in unemployment insurance, as proper measures which enlightened administration of affairs must adopt for the protection of the people. As for the immutability of "economic laws," with their cycles of prosperity and periods of retribution, he rejects it utterly as a flabby superstition.

He has, he assures us, "a very definite program for providing employment," and submitted, as a concrete proposal, the reforestation of marginal and unused lands, after the plan now in effect in New York, which, he estimates, would put a million men to work. And one of his first aids to agriculture would be "the immediate repeal of the laws that compel the Federal Government to go into the market to purchase, to sell, to speculate, in farm products in a futile attempt to reduce farm surpluses."

But the impressive thing about this dramatic acceptance was the speaker's philosophy of government. Mr. Roosevelt promises us, if elected, a new deal, a Government animated by a different purpose, with a different sense of obligation.

There are two ways of viewing the Government's duty (he said) in matters affecting economic and social life. The first sees to it that a favored few are helped and hopes that some of their prosperity will leak through, sift through, to labor, to the farmer, to the small business man. That theory belongs to the party of Toryism.

And that is the theory, he charged, which has been operative in Washington throughout the post-war orgy of inflation. The charge, he declared, was proved by "the cold figures of finance." He did not present the figures statistically, but many of his accusing statements of fact are irrefutable.

It is a fact, as he charged, that "enormous corporate surpluses piled up, the most stupendous in history."

It is a fact, as he charged, that there "was little or no drop in the prices the consumer had to pay, although the cost of production fell very greatly."

It is a fact, as he charged, that "the consumer was forgotten."

It is a fact, as he charged, that little of the huge profits went into increased wages, and that, therefore, "the worker was forgotten."

It is a fact, as he charged, that no adequate proportion was paid out even in dividends, and so "the stockholder was forgotten."

And the farmer was completely forgotten.

This bill of particulars, which might be extended, emphasizes the fact of the maldistribution of wealth, a condition which obviously must be corrected if we are to have an enduring prosperity. It cannot be corrected by Toryism, which regards it as the ideal arrangement. The liberalism professed and beligerently pledged by Mr. Roosevelt can correct it, if accompanied with the necessary capacity, and courage.

TOMORROW IN MASSACHUSETTS.

When the Massachusetts Executive Council meets tomorrow to consider the appointment of Prof. Felix Frankfurter as Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, it will face a matter which is of interest not to Massachusetts alone. For it is probable that never before has an appointment to a State Supreme Court occasioned such widespread, spontaneous approval.

Letters, telegrams and cablegrams of commendation have poured in on Gov. Ely from all sections of the United States and Europe. In a recent editorial and through our letters column, the Post-Dispatch has called attention to the unusually high character of Prof. Frankfurter's supporters. Harold J. Laski, the brilliant British political scientist, to mention only one, sent a radiogram congratulating Massachusetts on the "most distinguished nomination to its Supreme Court since that of Holmes 50 years ago."

Yet narrow-minded opposition, centered in Boston, based on Prof. Frankfurter's refusal to join in declaring Sacco and Vanzetti guilty until proved so, threatens to prevent this "much more than ordinarily qualified" candidate (the words are Justice Holmes') from filling the post to which he has been appointed. The Massachusetts Executive Council can be swayed by ill-founded prejudice or it can accept the counsel of the higher thinkers in the law. Surely it will not emulate the unthinking witch burners of Salem when it has a striking chance to honor the memory of the freedom-loving patriots of "the Cradle of Liberty."

There's one sure way to tell a wet speaker or writer from a dry one. If he refers to the beverage as "liquor," he may be either wet or dry. But if he mentions "booze," then he is dehydrated as the Sahara.

THE FARMER'S PRAYER.

Education Through the Air

Radio brings some excellent addresses and fine music, but larger part of broadcasts are along commercial lines; great educational opportunity is missed in welter of wireless programs; writer thinks popular demand can remedy situation, without U. S. control; urges schools to unite in seeking to redeem this powerful agency.

From the Commonweal.

IN our time, a human being could become what former ages would have termed "educated" though he were able neither to read nor write a word. By simply listening and seeing, he might, if so minded, pick up a fairly systematic knowledge of history, geography, science and even religion. The media upon which he would rely include the address, the radio, the movie. To one of these he could turn during virtually every hour of the day. If we try to imagine what such a person's mind would be like at the end of 10 years of such "training," we shall have a fairly good idea of what these devices are actually accomplishing.

For reasons too numerous to mention, nobody any longer claims that the "pleasure" afforded by the theater—or the movie specifically—is educational. We all know that the overwhelming majority of films are illiterate when they are not emotionally or morally primitive. The "faculty" which stands behind them is possibly the saddest array of servants to the malformed mind which has ever been recruited in history.

To be sure, one may "like" the movies for some things—the physical beauty photographed in them, the histrionic ability occasionally displayed in their making. But one has a fancy that the mortal who turned to them for "education," in any sense, would be worthy of all the adjectives ever lavished on the feeble-minded. Nor is there any apparent way in which the situation can be improved. Unless an incredible revolution in the public taste occurs, Hollywood is bound to continue subsidizing everything that the little red school house is not.

But there is another modern educational medium against which these strictures cannot be leveled. The radio has, beyond all doubt, made a genuinely commendable effort to provide fare worthy of the name. The broadcasting laboratories reveal the same astonishing perfection of technique which has been attained by the motion picture and the press. From the tube to the "micro," everything of which science is capable has been done to eliminate disturbance.

Is the product worthy of this effort? Sometimes it undoubtedly is. When excellent addresses are delivered; when opera or symphonic music is broadcast; when a clear-voiced singer does his or her best—then there is no denying that the radio has provided material of genuine educational merit. And if one adds the programs sponsored by organizations for religious purposes, or by the National Council for Radio in Education for civic betterment, it is apparent that both educational opportunity and desire to afford the right sort of material are present.

Nevertheless, all such efforts are addenda to the regular activity of the broadcasting stations. These are concerned, 90 per cent of the time, with making propaganda either for manufactured products or for ideas dear to the hearts of leading business men. The chief difficulty is, therefore, how to embed these morsels of suggestions in a sauce appetizing enough to make the public swallow them. For whatever else may be said about this public, it is not yet stupid enough to care for naked advertising, even when dispersed by a great corporation. So far the advertisers have relied chiefly upon music, though some hard work has been expended on literary programs, too. Mystery stories, humorous dialogues, playlets have now and then managed to reap wholesale applause.

To date, all is still in the experimental stage, but it is noticeable that the radio companies, aware that theirs is a real monopoly over which the threat of Government control is constantly suspended, have striven to eliminate unwholesome matter and to modify the sentimentality and wishfulness which would otherwise prevail.

That there is sentimentality, and that wishfulness is often resorted to, cannot be denied. During a good part of the day radio programs are about as insane as anything that can well be imagined. The thought that listening to such tommyrot constitutes a good part of the daily intellectual effort of tens of thousands of families may well give the educator a kind of nightmare. Many feel, indeed, that the situation is bad enough to justify the conviction that Government operation and supervision alone can solve the problem. It is pointed out that only in this country is advertising permitted to rule over a great new force for pleasure and instruction.

We are not in favor of this radical remedy. What is excellent for other countries does not always prove a godsend to the United States, as experience demonstrates. It seems to us rather that the teachers of the country have a magnificent opportunity here if they can take collective advantage of it. Utilizing some programs in school, and encouraging pupils and students to "listen in" on others would, if properly developed, give the schools a great deal of influence with the companies.

Here a democratic paradox is revealed. Just as bad government is largely the result of the better citizen's inactivity, the deluge of piffle and tripe which emanates from popular educational media has for one of its major causes the attitude of despairing indifference of the better instructed groups. Were these to make themselves half as vocal as the semi-illiterate do, affairs would soon change.

Radio is still worth redeeming and quite redeemable. It will develop into a genuinely powerful force for betterment, not as a result of futile institutionalizing, but as a consequence of intelligent co-operation on the educator's part. Of course, the individual can do little; the school as a whole can accomplish much. And woe-betide it if it sits back on its haunches and smiles despairingly!

TEEN AND NOW.

From the Cleveland Press.

THE Republican platform on the issue of 1864: "As slavery was the cause, and now constitutes the strength of this rebellion, and as it must be always and everywhere hostile to the principles of a republican government, justice and national safety demand its utter and complete extirpation from the soil of the republic."

The Republican platform on the issue of 1932: "We do not favor a submission limited to the issue of retention or repeal."

The Dole in America

From the World Tomorrow.

PRESS and platform and radio are now being utilized in a national campaign in opposition to the inauguration of the "terrible dole system" in the United States. Citizens of this country are continuously being warned against the evils of unemployment insurance as found in Great Britain, and are being urged instead to rely upon the American plan of handling economic miseries. Charity, private and governmental, constitutes the American plan. Starvation must be prevented, and so we resort to bread lines, soup kitchens and home relief. The ghastly inadequacy of this procedure may easily be discovered by an examination of the relevant evidence in any American city. Extreme cases are found in Niles, O., where it is reported in the press that 4377 people, one-fourth of its population, are being fed at a cost of $1 per month per person. In Tulsa, Ok., 10,000 persons are being given a charity ration costing 6 cents per day per person. In Toledo, the weekly allowance per family is $2.14.

To the extent that these are misleading exceptions, we invite consideration of national statistics pertaining to this discussion. When the fact is kept in mind that the situation is much worse now than 13 months ago, the following figures for 1931, released by the United States Department of Commerce, assume added significance. In those cities included in the survey, representing 39 per cent of the total population of all cities and incorporated communities in the entire nation, the total average expenditure in the first quarter of 1931 was just under $25,000,000 per month. The number of families receiving relief during that period was 1,287,778 per month. This means that the average relief per family was less than 10 cents per day for all necessary expenses.

Nevertheless, it is frequently maintained, private charity is preferable to Government doles. To which we reply: the records of the survey reveal that, of the total amount expended for relief, 80 cents of every dollar came from governmental organizations. That is to say, we already have a public dole.

One indication of the increase in the volume of need is found in certain comparative figures for New York city. The Welfare Council reports that in March, 1931, $2,484,000 was expended for unemployment relief, whereas the figure for March, 1932, was $4,700,000, exclusive of both cases of relief to the blind, aged and mothers with dependent children. This latter amount was distributed among 175,000 families, affording an average of $1.50 per day for each family for food, clothing and other necessities.

With not less than 5,000,000 unemployed in the United States at the present time, and perhaps 10 or 11 millions, local charity is utterly inadequate to prevent appalling misery. Direct Federal appropriations for relief purposes are imperatively needed. In war-time, the Government did not hesitate to float huge bond issues running into the billions. The present even more acute crisis calls for a bond issue of five billion dollars or more with which to put the unemployed at work on constructive and productive enterprises. Furthermore, this is the time for every thoughtful citizen to recognize the need for a national system of social insurance and to seek to arouse public opinion to action in this realm.

When industry collapses and millions of persons are on the verge of starvation, some kind of "dole" is inescapable. The American plan of relying upon bread lines, soup kitchens, flop houses and other direct charity is infinitely more demoralizing and destructive of human values than is the British system of unemployment insurance.

"THE DESERT SONG"

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

TO the accompaniment of occasional fireworks launched off by Fourth of July celebrators in Forest Park, some thunder and lightning and even a brief deluge of rain "The Desert Song," still another Sigmund Romberg musical drama, vastly entertained some 9000 people at the start of the fifth week of Municipal Opera last night. A record crowd might have been on hand but for the threatening weather. The large crowd which did turn out came prepared, for the most part, for rain and when just at the finish of the first act, the downpour came umbrellas and rubber coats went into action while the audience scurried to the shelter of the pergolas.

The rain caused almost no delay. The ending of the initial act as hurried a bit but by the time the next scene was set the storm was over and the spectators got back to their seats to see the play through to the end without further interruption.

"The Desert Song," one of the best of the operettas of recent years, is not new to Forest Park audiences or to indoor theatergoers but the present production on the great park stage outshines any of the earlier performances here for Watson Barratt has provided a half dozen or so gorgeous settings for the scenes in the two acts and the cast is an exceptional one. The story, as you will probably recall, tells of a sort of French Robin Hood who leads the Riffs of Northern Africa in revolt against his own people and finally establishes a better understanding and a hope for peace between the two races. Also this dashing and masked liberator of the Riffs who, along with their opponents, know him only as the Red Shadow, establishes himself as a hero in the eyes of Margot Bonvalet, a French girl who visits the garrison town, so that the play has its full quota of romance as well as dash and daring.

after musical comedy fashion, a society reporter for a Parisian newspaper takes a turn as a war correspondent and manages to keep in hot water most of the time. This role falls, in the present production, to Harry K. Morton and that nimble dancer scored heavily just as he has done in previous shows this summer.

But the highest honors fall to Leonard Ceeley, as The Red Shadow, and to Charlotte Lansing as his sweetheart, Margot. Their singing was of the first order, and Mr. Ceeley's dash and authority was matched by Miss Lansing's charm. Clifford Newdahl, whose splendid singing and portrayal of the pathetic Franz Schubert in last week's "Blossom Time" was one of the best pieces of work the Municipal stage has ever seen, has an entirely different sort of character in the present play, where he is a French officer set upon capturing The Red Shadow and the heart of Margot. He does neither, but, once again, he gives an excellent performance.

Alvin Jones—for this Romberg piece boasts three first run tenors—has only a small role to sing appearing as one of the Riff leaders, but he has a song or two of his own which give ample opportunity for the display of his fine voice.

Chorus Scores Again.

"The Red Shadow" was written almost to order for the large St. Louis chorus and the male contingent did excellent work throughout as did the young women, while the dancing end of the ensemble shown to its best advantage.

There is a deal of fine music in Romberg's score from the song of the Riffs to the Desert Song which recurs throughout the opera. Other catchy airs are found in

JAMES N. HILL, SON OF RAIL BUILDER, DIES

Bank and Transportation Director Succumbs to Heart Disease at 62.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 5.—James Norman Hill, 62 years old, son of the late James J. Hill, the transportation magnate, and himself a bank and railroad director, died yesterday at his Long Island estate. He had been in poor health for weeks.

A native of St. Paul, Minn., Mr. Hill began his railroad service as a clerk after graduating from Yale University in 1893. In 1905 he became vice-president and later a director of the Northern Pacific.

His widow, the former Marguerite Sawyer Fahrenstock, survives. The eldest of nine children, he was the first of the sons of James J. Hill to enter into training for the responsibilities of the railroad system which his father built.

However, he retired 10 years ago from the board of the Northern Pacific as his brother, Louis, did later from the board of the Great Northern in accordance with their father's desire to get out of railroading as soon as they could after reaching the age of 40.

Two physicians had been attending him since he first was confined to his room three weeks ago by a heart attack. Mrs. Hill and a niece, Miss Marguerite Wilson, were at his bedside at the end.

In recent years Hill devoted a major portion of his time to the development of his estate. A lover of trees, he had planted more than 750 varieties.

He was a breeder of Ayrshire and Holstein cattle. As a bird enthusiast he had a lot of homing pigeons and recently built on the estate three duck ponds holding a total of 2,350,000 gallons of water in an effort to attract wild ducks to the area.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 5.—After a pronounced slump in the early trading, the stock market drifted idly today, closing a little above the lows. Early declines ranged from 1 to 4 points in the leaders, but there were recoveries of from fractions to a point. The closing tone was heavy. Transfers aggregated 400,000 shares.

Public utilities softened in the initial dealings, and showed little comeback. Foods, chemicals and industrial specialties also ran into some selling, while rails and oils held fairly steady, for the most part, and some of the mining issues worked a little higher, contrary to the general trend.

American Telephone and Eastman recovered about a point, after slumping 3 and 4, respectively. Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey closed off about 2 points. Union Pacific was a weak feature of the rails, declining more than 2 to a new low. Issues of a point or so included North American, American Waterworks, Allied Chemical, National Biscuit, Coca-Cola, Corn Products, U. S. Steel, American Can, American Tobacco, "B," and Liggett & Myers "B." Among mining issues, American Smelting and Kennecott gained fractionally, while Alaska Juneau, Homestake and McIntire Petroleum advanced about a point. Shell Union preferred and Royal Dutch were firm.

Marked heaviness of leading foreign currencies against the dollar, was of notable development in the foreign exchange market. Sterling cables ruled more than 2 cents lower at 33.5, and other Europeans were lower. It appeared that recent selling of the dollar had been excessive, and that foreigners were again replacing their balances here. Weakness of sterling has been partly due to the lowering of interest rates in London, precipitating withdrawals of foreign funds.

Bar silver declined 1/4 cent to 25 1/2 cents an ounce, only 1/2 cent above the record low of last year.

The ordering of a temporary rate reduction of 12 1/2 percent in Wisconsin, pending definite settlement of the rate case in that state, was reported. There was virtually nothing in the news to account for improved tone in copper. Copper metal was a little firmer in London, but that was attributed here to the decline in sterling exchange.

The weekly freight car loadings report, showing a reduction of 15,510 cars from the previous week, more than cancelling its earlier gain of 16,649 cars, was regarded as tending to confirm the view that the improvement in this barometer for the week ended June 13 merely reflected a movement of merchandise in and out of the excise tax which took effect June 21. Steel production has fallen to 15 per cent of capacity or less, according to one date estimate. Although orders for structural steel last week was said to be the third best for 1932 to date.

Lausanne was watched closely for constructive developments, and the action of foreign bonds provided some optimism, although New York bankers were inclined to withhold judgment, while the conference remained in its acute bargaining phase.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, July 5.—Trading was quiet and after early strength, irregularly developed due to profit-taking in gilt-edged securities and foreign bonds. Firmness in American shares disappeared after the lower Wall Street opening. Cable and wireless was firm on the preference dividend announcement. The closing was irregular.

PARIS, July 5.—After an irregular opening, prices soared under the lead of rentes, the 2 per cent issue gaining two points. Bank shares, international issues and oils were firm. The bourse closed buoyant.

BERLIN, July 5.—Prices on the bourse continued firm and despite some profit-taking sales the closing was sustained.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN.

THE tragic copy of that newspaper is still in my possession. Its pages are ragged and yellow, but the message conveyed therein retains its vigorous meaning. For me it is a message of cheer. Whenever my friends express fear for the future of the United States, I read to them the newspaper printed on June 13, 1893, and let them decide for themselves whether the troubles of the moment are really of such unprecedented nature as their emotions would lead them to believe.

Financial crisis, industrial depression, blundering politics, sensational trials, administrative corruption, dangerous morals of the young generation, unkind remarks of visiting English authors, dearth of good literature, need for theatrical censorship, low betting averages of the ball players—these are hardly a phase of present-day American life which did not cause sleepless nights to the readers and writers of that newspaper in 1893.

Glancing at the financial page we learn that Wall Street is wrapped in gloom. "New York Central at 14 1/2 reaches a new low for the year. More bankruptcies expected within the next 24 hours. Money on call is very scarce at 13 to 15 per cent."

Under a glaring headline, "Lizie Borden's Sensational Trial in New Bedford, Mass. Creates an Enormous Amount of Unhealthy Curiosity," we read the following slightly familiar communication:

"These people storming the local courthouse like wild animals are not only urchins from the street and roughs and toughs from the back alley, but well-dressed persons who ought to know better."

"The editorial writer advises us that 'a fair notice is given to the Democrats in the next Congress that they must redeem all the pledges of their platform or be classed as admirers of cowardice, instigators of knavery, liars and sneaks.'"

"The Washington correspondent observes with a noticeable degree of malice that 'although President Cleveland was indisposed and remained at Woodley, many Senators and Congressmen climbed the stairs only to find the President away. Some of them poured the subject of their errands into the ears of Private Secretary Thurber.'"

THE burning of Ford's Theater in Washington, accompanied by a heavy loss of human lives, creates a row between the Coroner and the investigating authorities. Three columns of solid text are given under the headline which reads: "The New Inquest Begun in Washington. The Inquiry Into the Ford's Theater Disaster Threatens to Continue for Many Weeks. Dr. Patterson Bluntly Refuses to Let Col. Alsworth Participate in the Examination."

The fashion editor does not disguise his misgivings over the extravagance of a "modern girl": "Frou-frou might well be the name of the girl of this fantastic and daring period. She has frills on her shoulders and frills on her skirts and everywhere that a frill can be worn. On a pretty girl in a pink gown this writer counted 15 separate gathered ruffles."

The tax collector is ever on the job, and "Jay Gould's Heirs Register a Strenuous Protest. Decided to Resist Payment of the Full Inheritance Tax."

Let us pass over a bitter remark of the baseball writers, referring to the "continuous slipping of the New York Giants," and see what is going on in the literary world: "Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson's new story has the queer title of 'The Go Between.' It is sincerely hoped that the story reads better than its title sounds."

A writer introducing himself as "the book buyer" confesses being thoroughly fed up with the arrogance of visiting British celebrities. In his estimation "the Englishmen who come to this country are too dull to appreciate the fact that the best English spoken in the world is spoken on this side of the Atlantic."

THEY are playing "Robt Hood" at the Garden Theater in New York, but this fact does not prevent a righteous reader from writing a letter to the editor, expressing his distaste "at the frivolousness displayed on the modern American stage." He thinks that "something should be done to save the morals of our daughters who have to listen to all these remarks of decidedly bad taste."

The term "stenor" is not invented as yet, but we learn that the officers of the H. I. M. S. Dimitry Danokel, taken on a tour of inspection through the Navy Yard, "exhibited much interest in and gave some sly glances to the young women typists who are employed in the offices and who are admitted to be pretty."

The history of humanity teaches us that the glorification of the Good Old Days is the struggle with the record of plain facts of the past. Each one of my three visits to America coincided with a period of financial disturbance. Each time I had been told that the nation was facing a terrible Armageddon. It makes me rather proud to think that even in 1893, having had no previous experience with Wall Street hysteria, I was inclined

MEET THE ROOSEVELT FAMILY

GOV. ROOSEVELT and his daughter, MRS. CURTIS DALL.

Democratic Candidate's Ambitious Wife and Lively Children Play Part in His Political Success.

—By MARGUERITE MARTYN—
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 4.

THE nomination of Franklin Delano Roosevelt by the Democrats offers a possibility—a strong probability many insist—of further honors and prominence being accorded a family that not only has achieved a place in American history rivaling that of the Adams family, but has an intimate background of more than ordinary appeal to American ideals. The Roosevelt family, according to those in a position to know, occupies its place in American life because of the initiative, decision and ability of the individual members.

At Roosevelt headquarters in Chicago have been on duty early and far into the night, Miss Nancy Cook, Miss Marion Dickerman, Miss Mary Dewson and Miss Melvina Thompson, intimately associated with the candidate's wife in some of her many enterprises. Any one of these, all excellent exhibits of the progressive, liberal, modern type of women themselves, would sit down and tell you remarkable tales of Mrs. Roosevelt's activities and personality. The four agreed on Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, her maiden as well as her married name, that her dominant characteristic is her interest in the general welfare of the people, that no one is more interested in having people happy, not just within her own family circle, but outside, all over the State of New York, with a capacity for extending her interest to the whole vast country. They tell of a remarkable daily program of the candidate's wife in the past few days.

"Her mail," said Miss Thompson, her secretary, dividing this duty with that of being first secretary to the Governor's private secretary, "is amazing and amusing. She spends a lot of time responding, write to her for advice on how to get on with their children. Teachers ask how to handle unruly pupils. The other day I found a father with a young son just suspended from school writing in a letter to her with his problem in person, to ask Mrs. Roosevelt what he should do with him. They write to her for direction as to how to get financial aid. I thought the lowest of these appeals was from an old woman who wrote to know how she was to manage to pay her dog tax. I have known Mrs. Roosevelt to go personally clear across the State in response to one of these appeals from an unknown person. She spends a lot of time looking up birth certificates for people more than 75 years old who are entitled to pensions under the old age pension law enacted under Gov. Roosevelt."

"Then, of course, you have heard of her school work. Every Sunday night nine months of the year she departs for New York to assume her duties as vice principal and instructress in the Teachers' School for Girls returning to Albany at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. She teaches history, English and literature through a course on famous people, and civil government to 100 girls from elementary to senior grades and a post-graduate course in civics open to members of the Junior League. These young women of social standing and influence she believes have a special responsibility toward the less fortunately placed. Her connection with the school dates from a desire to aid her friend, Miss Dickerman, its principal, in getting started with her educational experiments. We expected that when she went to preside over the Governor's mansion she would leave and let a substitute fill her place, but she hasn't been able to tear herself away from this practical demonstration of her interest in public education. It is not altogether an experimental school, though they do adopt many of the methods of the so-called progressive educational movement. Education in civic responsibility interests her most. One feature is personal observation trips she takes pupils on to Ellis Island, the police and domestic relations courts, industrial plants, charitable agencies, tenement districts, the old ones and the new model tenements, for her idea is not so much to reveal the seamy side of life as to impress the girls with all that is being done toward social betterment; to show that one does not have to accept complacently the idea that the poor we have always with us, but that effort and the struggle upward are bringing results."

And you have heard of the furniture factory? Miss Cook is the one best qualified to tell of this and though she probably will neglect to tell that it started with her war relief work in England, where she learned to carve peg-legs for maimed soldiers and acquired an aptitude for wood-working tools and materials.

"At the Hyde Park country place," said Miss Cook, "we were talking one day six years ago of the misfortune of many unemployed men and boys in the rural districts with no nearby factories or industries to absorb them. Why not start one with my training in handicraft? It was suggested. At once the Governor offered a cottage two miles from the big house as a nucleus of a plant and also volunteered to build a road to it. So we organized the Val-Kyl furniture shop to make reproductions of early American furniture. I designed and directing boys and men to whom we constantly have paid the regular union wage scales. Mrs. Roosevelt undertook the advertising and selling end of the business, with the result that, what with the demand for period furniture, we have carried on successfully even during the depression. She holds exhibitions twice a year at art centers and places the factory products in the big shows."

"How does a Governor's wife carry on all these projects unrelated to the duties of hostess at the State House which would seem to be enough to occupy any average woman?"

"Oh, these are not all her activities," replied Miss Cook. "She has had to resign many of her official affiliations with many women's clubs and organizations and movements, but it is well known that there is no group so small and insignificant which wants to have an engagement for an address by her. I believe her one remaining office in a club now is with the Women's Trade Union League, of which we have a very fine organization in New York headed by Miss Mary Dries and Rose Schneiderman. Their work is bettering conditions for women working in the trades."

"She chose this out of all her affiliations as the one she could least bring herself to discontinue. 'The secret of her resourcefulness, energy and varied interests is that she organizes her life systematically,' continued Miss Cook. 'There is never a moment lost nor a motion wasted. She keeps an exact calendar and can tell you six weeks ahead what she will be doing at a certain moment. By planning nothing is allowed to overlap. She is notoriously punctual and reliable, though she never seems in a hurry, for she has not a nervous temperament. Of course the energizing force beneath is a boundless interest and concern in the welfare of others and complete forgetfulness of her own momentary selfish inclinations if she has any. Her system includes holidays and recreation, planned usually for the benefit of others, but participated in with lots of spirit and genuine appreciation of fun."

She plays a very good game of bridge and finds time to turn out an amazing number of knitted articles. She takes her knitting with her instead of cigarettes some of us do nowadays. Then there were exhibits A, B, C, D and E, a daughter and four sons of the Roosevelts here as visible evidence of the efficacy of their parents' philosophy of life and its practice. Never have I met young people in their conspicuous position playing their roles so admirably. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, 25 years old, and the mother of two children, re-ladies told me how perfectly adorable John was. He also is a student at Groton preparatory school.

Mrs. James Roosevelt was Betsy Cushing, daughter of the noted brain specialist, Dr. Harvey Cushing of Boston. She is the mother of Sarah Delano, aged two months.

"They come of good stock, these children," observed Miss Dickerman. The Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt are sixth cousins, both descendants of old Dutch settlers.

She was a niece of the late Theodore, daughter of his elder brother, Elliot. Her father died when she was 8 or 9 and she spent much time with her uncle's family. T. H. was her godfather as he also was her young cousin Franklin's godfather. When they were married on St. Patrick's day, 1905, the then police commissioner of New York dashed away from the parade to give the bride away.

With typical Roosevelt enthusiasm as a young wife, she threw herself wholeheartedly into her husband's interests and when first he ran for the Legislate he main interest immediately and ever afterward became his public duty. Ignoring the common habit of legislators of living at home and visiting the capital only during sessions, the Roosevelts with their three small children moved from the farm in Dutchess County to Albany, installing themselves in a comfortable house where Mrs. Roosevelt presided over the menage which was to become famous as headquarters of a little group of Democratic insurgents.

"The Governor grew up," said Miss Dickerman, "on the farm at Crumlow, which is the farthest north point reached by Hendrick self-consciousness of my young day."

Just after the nomination reporters swarmed around the candidate's children. A flat fight ensued between two clamorous photographers. There would have been a time to show impatience and so remarked to Anna Dall. "And that would only make things harder for all concerned," she replied. "It's easier just to be amiable and follow the line of least resistance." They were particularly pleased because Al Smith's son-in-law, John Warner, had hastened to congratulate them. "I think it was perfectly peachy of him," said Mrs. Dall.

Young James Roosevelt, named for his paternal grandfather, who must have been a grand old gentleman from all accounts, circulated always through the crowd, strong rows of teeth always showing. One could see him picking out "the forgotten man" and trying to make him feel at home. No difficulty at all spotting his tall figure and engaging him in conversation, in contrast to the bumptious Cornelius Vanderbilt, volunteer doorkeeper to the inner sanctum of Roosevelt strategy, seeming to think his sole duty was keeping people at bay, whereas young Roosevelt welcomed all comers. Elliott Roosevelt was married this year to Belle Donner of Philadelphia, but unable to produce her on the spot since frankly they all tell you she is home having a baby. No race suicide in the Roosevelt family and very little reliance on the subject. I never did catch up with Frank Jr. and John the youngest, though I heard enthusiastically from his brothers and sister how Frank had come straight from Groton, where stroking the crew he had come off with three victories out of four, and was elected captain of the crew for next year, while all the flappers and old the Roosevelt family as well as himself. In simple but smart cotton or linen frocks varied by chiffons in the evenings she flitted about headquarters, meeting people, serving tea and running errands for those in charge. One midnight found her still on duty in the crowd milling through the hotel corridors and campaign headquarters as they did for a week before the convention really began.

Anna Dall was accompanied at all times by her sister-in-law, "Mrs. Jimmie," a slightly more timid version of herself. Both are tall and slender, both have blue eyes that were always a-shine with excitement, the well known Roosevelt teeth of Anna always showing, too. Both affected the same type of girlish frocks and soft, close-fitting fabric hats varied by sports Panama hats when not bareheaded. Mrs. Jimmie's hair is auburn and though long is worn in a horizontal roll like a long loose bob. Anna's hair is fair and worn in shiny waves knotted close at the nape of the neck. Together the young women sat through that all night session until 9:30 in the morning. "We might as well be here. We couldn't sleep if we were at home," said Mrs. Dall.

If you ask my opinion

—Martha Carr—

DEAR MRS. CARR: We don't know what to do with ourselves this summer. We go on boat excursions most of the time. We have tried looking in library books for things to do other summers.

MUTT AND JEFF.

Seems to me there are just loads of things to do in summer. They should be mostly out-of-door. A little study of the out-of-door wouldn't hurt you a bit; although I know with some boys and girls that suggestion would be received with a groan. How much do you know about the trees, for goodness sake? I'll bet you don't know a mulberry from an elm, except when the mulberries are ready to drop the young fruit. And I'll bet you don't know real, sure anemone "grass" when you see it. And as for the difference between oats and timothy and alfalfa and vetch—well you'd make a dandy farmer, if you didn't know which to feed your stock, wouldn't you?

Get into some of the summer sports and if you want something rather interesting and not too stimulating, get a croquet set; you can play that after the sun is down. If you care for some outdoor games send me a self-addressed stamped envelope.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I suppose that this is an old story to you, but it's a story I please help me out. I corresponded with a former schoolmate of mine for seven years. I had never seen her during that time and lately she visited me. During the course of the conversation I learned that she was now in the city, having returned to run with a rather wild. They seem to have done a number of unconventional things in general, and I have been wondering whether or not I should discontinue my acquaintance with the girl for this reason. What would you suggest?

THANK YOU.

If you are sure the girl has low standards seriously, then it will do you no good, of course, and probably not help her, to be on very close terms of friendship. I believe a growing coolness is the only way you can manage.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I have always wanted to be a singer and now am old enough to start lessons. But it's the old story of having no money to do it.

I am accustomed to taking care of children and would be glad to have that work in exchange for singing lessons. I can give them the best of references. I would also like to sing in a girls' glee club. I am 16 years old. M. C. M.

Hudson on his exploration of the river. It is a fine old house with a long gallery through the middle and looks out upon acres killed by Roosevelts for a hundred years. As a boy the Governor roamed the woods, read in the well stocked library and took active part in all the work pertaining to a large farm. It is to that early mode of life he attributes the physique which has enabled him to resist the progress of infantile paralysis which attacked him so suddenly in August, 1921. His mother still presides over the farm which is the family's week-end retreat. Here the Governor keeps his horse and a swimming pool which give him the only exercise he can take as yet except that now he is driving his own car. His mother is a charming old lady. When she was young her father was in the China trade and she has many anecdotes of his adventures. She tells of how he chartered a sailing ship, the Surprise, and took his entire family on one of his trips to China. They had a cow on board so that the children should not be deprived of fresh milk and a piano so that their musical instruction need not lapse.

Ignoring the common habit of legislators of living at home and visiting the capital only during sessions, the Roosevelts with their three small children moved from the farm in Dutchess County to Albany, installing themselves in a comfortable house where Mrs. Roosevelt presided over the menage which was to become famous as headquarters of a little group of Democratic insurgents.

Just after the nomination reporters swarmed around the candidate's children. A flat fight ensued between two clamorous photographers. There would have been a time to show impatience and so remarked to Anna Dall. "And that would only make things harder for all concerned," she replied. "It's easier just to be amiable and follow the line of least resistance." They were particularly pleased because Al Smith's son-in-law, John Warner, had hastened to congratulate them. "I think it was perfectly peachy of him," said Mrs. Dall.

Young James Roosevelt, named for his paternal grandfather, who must have been a grand old gentleman from all accounts, circulated always through the crowd, strong rows of teeth always showing. One could see him picking out "the forgotten man" and trying to make him feel at home. No difficulty at all spotting his tall figure and engaging him in conversation, in contrast to the bumptious Cornelius Vanderbilt, volunteer doorkeeper to the inner sanctum of Roosevelt strategy, seeming to think his sole duty was keeping people at bay, whereas young Roosevelt welcomed all comers. Elliott Roosevelt was married this year to Belle Donner of Philadelphia, but unable to produce her on the spot since frankly they all tell you she is home having a baby. No race suicide in the Roosevelt family and very little reliance on the subject. I never did catch up with Frank Jr. and John the youngest, though I heard enthusiastically from his brothers and sister how Frank had come straight from Groton, where stroking the crew he had come off with three victories out of four, and was elected captain of the crew for next year, while all the flappers and old

Mrs. James Roosevelt was Betsy Cushing, daughter of the noted brain specialist, Dr. Harvey Cushing of Boston. She is the mother of Sarah Delano, aged two months.

"They come of good stock, these children," observed Miss Dickerman. The Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt are sixth cousins, both descendants of old Dutch settlers.

She was a niece of the late Theodore, daughter of his elder brother, Elliot. Her father died when she was 8 or 9 and she spent much time with her uncle's family. T. H. was her godfather as he also was her young cousin Franklin's godfather. When they were married on St. Patrick's day, 1905, the then police commissioner of New York dashed away from the parade to give the bride away.
